years have been swindled by Eric Dickson, alias M. Francois Leftebre of Belfast and a score of other names, can, it they like, have the satisfaction of prosecuting him, for he has been at length laid by the heels. The other day Dickson called on the British Consul at Dresden for the purpose of obtaining passports for Russia, in support of which he produced letters of naturalization which the Consul at once saw were false.

The Consul communicated with the police, who promptly arrested the fascinating stranger, who proved to be the long-sought international swindler, for whom the police of at least five countries of Europe have been long vainly cearching. Dickson's real name is believed to be Ferdinand Rodriguez Alvarez, formerly an officer of the Guatemalan army. He is a linguist of marvelous ability, and has been highly successful in his swindling career. His victims have included some of the biggest people in Europe and many Amercans, male and female.

Nicaragua to be Let Down Easy.

The Terms Are Now Under Consideration.

Bitter Feeling on the Part of the Populace Against the British.

Speculation as to the Probability of War-Uncle Sam's Vessels to Pass by-Comment of the English Press.

lated Press Leased-wire Service MANAGUA (Nicaragua,) April 29.—(By Central American Cable.) A proposition of compromise and immediate evacuation of Corinto by the British is now under consideration between Washington, London and the authorities here. The proposition embraces the following essential points: First, Nicaragua is to pay $77,500 at London within two weeks.

Second, the British forces are to be immediately withdrawn from Corinto without waiting for the two weeks to elapse.

Third, a mixed commission of arbitration is to pass on the demands of Great Britain's excess of the $77,500 claim, such commission to be constituted in a manner satisfactory to the United States and Nicasangue

The foregoing terms, it is believed, will be accepted by President Zelaya and his Cabinet. It is understood that the suggestion of a settlement came from the Nicaraguan representative in Washington, and it is believed that such an adjustment would be agreeable to she United States authorRies. If the Nicaraguans' accept-ance is given, the proposition will be urged on the London Foreign Office and it is believed it will be accepted. WHERE THE DANGER LIES.

WHERE THE DANGER LIES.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Some sudden and unexpected orders issued to United States naval vessels late this afternoon caused a sensation for a time until the purpose of the orders was explained. The Alert, which has been for a month or more at Panama, watching the progress of the revolutionary move sent in Columbia, was ordered to proceed at once to San Juan del Sur, the nearest cable port to Corinto, Nicaragua. The Raleigh, now on her way from Kingston, Jamaica, to Key Weat, and expected to arrive at the latter place any moment, will find awaiting her orders to sail at once to Greytown, the eastern terminus of the proposed Nicaragua canal. The Montgomery, now at Mobile, will follow the Raleigh on May 7, with the Nicaraguan Canal Commission aboard. The Monterey, having sailed yesterday from Acapuico direct for Panama, is not expected to touch at Corinton and as she is now beyond the reach of orders by wire, she will probably be allowed to relieve the Alert on guard at Panama, whence she can be ordered back to Nicaragua if trouble arises in the future.

Secretary Herbert explained briefly the meaning of these orders. He said that the movements of the ships had absolutely nothing to do with the occupation of Corinto by the British, that being a matter to be settled between the Nicaraguans and the British. The real purpose of the orders was to guard American interests in Nicaragua against a possible revolution: Being assked what measure of protection the Nicarguan commission would receive in the pursuance of its work of inspecting the line of the canal, the Secretary said that the Monterey would remain at Greytown while the committee was at the interior, and with the two ships on one side and one on the other they would surely be forced to protect the commission and all other American interests.

The action of Secretary Herbert may be attributed to the visit to Washington of WASHINGTON, April 29.—Some sudder terests.

The action of Secretary Herbert may be attributed to the visit to washington or ex-Senator Warner Miller of the Nicaragua Canal Company, and of some reports made by him on the basis of private reports as to the real condition of affairs in Nicaragua, and those coming to the Nicaragua Minister directly. Certainly the character of the United States ves: 1, which have been ordered to Nicaragua is a sufficient evidence that Secretary Herbert does not expect them to come into hostile conflict with the British ships, for if it came to that the small cruisers Montgomery and Raleigh would come into hostile conflict with the British ships, for if it came to that the small cruisers Montgomery and Raleigh would find themselves opposed to the whole British West Indies squadron, while on the Pacific the Alert would be left single-handed against the British Royal Arthur, Wild Swan and Satellite.

In Miller's conferences with Secretary Greeham and other Cabinet officers, he presented a very strong case og the urgency of the situation, and the menace to American control of the caval. He brought out clearly the fact that the British threatened to go to Greytown, and to San Juan del Sur, the two important points on the Atlantic and Pacific ends of the canal. It was soon after this thur the orders to the vessels were made. Ex-Senstor Miller said that the canal company was very much interested in evenis in Nicaragun. The revolution, which has been threatened as a result of British occupation, may disturb the canal company by preventing work on surveys, and the poceible destruction of its property. The company, Miller said, wanted the protection of its interests, if not from the Nicaraguan government, then from the outside. The concessions of the company were safe, but the line of the canal was not.

The concessions of the company were safe, but the line of the canal was not.

He also said the concession entitled the entire line of the canal to protection, but an uncontrollable movement may result in the destruction of property by irresponsible persons. Miller said he had called the attention of the State Department to the necessity of protection to the commission that is soon to leave for Nicaragua to examine the route of the canal. He says that it will be very dangerous in case of revolutionary disturbances for an unprotected party to make a trip over the line of the canal. The commission being under the direction of the State Department, it will, of course, be necessary for the State Department for an armed force in case of trouble.

Ex-Senator Miller urged upon both Secretary Herbert and Secretary Gresham the necessity of such protection, and also added that in case of revolutionary disturbances the United States should not depend upon the Nicaraguan government to protect the property. He said that Nicaragua had been tranquil up to two years ago, but the revolution at that time had disturbed affairs, and since then there had been an unsettled condition. He also says that the canal company wishes to give every opportunity for the canal. He ex-

MANAGUA (Nicaragua, via Galveston.)
April 29.—The commander of the Nicareguan troops on the mainland of Nica-raguar reported at 9 o'clock this morning that the British flag was still floating over puttle buildings at Corinto, and the over puche buildings are Cornete, and the port remains in the possession of the British warships. Among the Nicaraguan troops and populace the greatest excitement prevails, and the feeling against Great Britain is increasing in bitterness every hour. Nicaraguan troops are still massed along Paso Cabrillo, and it is believed the tree country of the British of the country of the c lieved that they may open fire on the Brit-ish should the latter make any attempt to cross from Corinto to the mainland. Steps have been taken to destroy the means of communication with the interior means of communication with the interior should such action be found necessary. The British consulate in this city remains under guard in view of the rioring and stone-throwing which has already oc-curred, and in anticipation of further trouble. Some European consuls are using their good offices with the government to persuade it to submit to Great Britain, persuade it to submit to Great Britain, pleading in support of their arguments the fact that the United States has determined to remain neutral, and Nicaragua is helploss when opposed to such a power as Great Britain. Aithough the Nicaraguan forces opposite Corinco are in communication with the capital, actual telegraphic communication with Corinto remains interrupted, and it is thought likely that therwill be no attempt to repair the telegraph lines as long as the British remain in possession of the port.

lines as long as the british session of the port.

In spite of reports to the contrary, the people of Nicaragua generally sustain the government in the stand it has taken against Great Britain, and though, in all probability. Nicaragua may eventually be the indemnity demanded, probability, Nicaragua may compelled to pay the indemnity demanded it is believed that the trade of Great Bric it is believed that the trade of Great Bric with Nicaragua and other Central perican republics will suffer in conse-ence of the action of the British fleet at quence of the action of the British fleet at Cerinto. The British government in com-mand at Corinto has declared the por-closed, and it is difficult to see how she will be able to collect the customs due. WILL MAKE HER PAY FOR IT.

WASHINGTON, April 29.-It was stated hera today that Great Britain will now probably demand that Nicaragua pay not only the original cash demand, but all ex-penses which Great Britain is put to in occupying and holding Corinto, and the expenses or other steps which she may take

THE MONTEREY. WASHINGTON, April 29.-The Monterey, which has been at Acapulco for a few days, sailed yesterday to Panama. Corinto days, sailed yesterday to Panama. Corinto lies almost midway between these points. A naval officer, speaking of the fact that the Monterey would not stop at Corinto, said the the Nicaragua affair was evidently one in which the United States was not going to mix up. In this connection attention is called to the fact that yesterday the Raleigh sailed from Jamaica to Kev West and there is not now any terday the Raleigh sailed from Jamaica to Key West, and there is not now any United States warships in isthmian or Nicaraguan waters on the Atlantic side.

This is said to be in order to call attention sharply to the position of the United States, and warn any American citizens in Nicaragua that they will not be supported in taking any part in the existing trouble; and the United States cannot be placed in the position of using or making a demonstration of force during the trouble.

A FEW REMABUS A FEW REMARKS

LONDON, April 29.-The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon, commenting upon the occupation of Corinto by the British squadoccupation of Corinto by the British squadron under Rear-Admiral Stephenson, says:
"We do not want to hurt Nicaragua, but only to teach her manners. The world will smile at President Zelaya's memorial. He bewails Nicaragua's smallness and weakness. We fancy that is one point in which the world regards Nicaragua with satisfaction. Imagine a hornet as big and strong as an elephant."

The Saint James Gazette today, referring to the same subject remarks: "Great strong as an elephant."

The Saint James Gazette today, referring to the same subject, remarks: "Great Britain has at length taken proper measures with the insolent, anarchical little Spanish-American republic. If the barbarian republics did not calculate upon the final protection of the United States they would behave themselves. The Monroe doctrine has been the subject for much foolish declamation. It is apparent that it is understood to mean that America is prepared to protect every Spanish-American half-breed who thinks it fit torob a European. Of course this is nonsense, but the most nonsensical defusion upon which people are prepared to act is of practical importance. The Nicaraguans and Venezuelans do not understand that the noisy electioneering swagger of Northern papers in America will not influence the action of the Federal government. We are now determined to stop the intolerant insolence and aggression of these caricatures of civilized states. We began with Nicaragua and it is intimated that we intend to conclude with Venezuela."

Commenting upon the talk of a general alliance between Great Britain and the

with Venezuela."

Commenting upon the talk of a general alliance between Great Britain and the United States the St. James Gazette says:

"We would rather have the alliance with the United States than with any other people, but a standing offensive and defensive agreement is a compromising thing. Both sides would act together in a defined region for a limited number of objects. Another matter is that the interests of the United States and Great Britain in Central America, and in parts of South America, are identical. We do not intend to make conquests anywhere in America and therefore the United States has no ground for jealousy. Both nations desire to trade in peace and are molested by Spanish-American anarchy. This, then, is the proper foundation for allied action. If the United States is prepared to act with us we are very well disposed to accept the co-operation."

SPECULATIONS AS TO WARLIKE MOVEMENTS.

MOVEMENTS.

SPECULATIONS AS TO WARLIKE MOVEMENTS.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The impression here is that the situation at Corinto is likely to remain unchanged for a few days at least. The British forces occupying the town are not likely to be attacked unless they endeavor to force their way inland and, so far as is now known, there is no present necessity for any such movement. The abandonment of the town by the Nicaraguaus on the whole rather tends to better the aspect of affairs just now, for it reduces to a minimum the chances of a hostile collision, and the very isolation of the place from the surrounding country tends to the same end.

State Department officials are still firmly convinced that the Nicaraguan government will pay the indemnity, and believe that he delay grows entirely out of the conditions of political expediency.

The Nicaraguans here count on the active sympathy and substantial support of the other Central American republics in the event of actual hostilities. They do not express the belief that their sister republics will take part as such, but feel confident that individual volunteers will come to the Nicaraguans in sufficient numbers to give them an effective army of at least 50,000 men. While with this force they could not expect to defeat the British they hope to make it very uncomfortable for them. The coast-towns, which are small and unimportant save as ports of entry for goods, would be abandoned and the army would make its campaign in the tropical fastnesses of the interior, which are well-nigh inaccasible to the European would be very expensive to Great Britain.

A war conducted under such conditions would be very expensive to Great Britain, necessitating the transportation of a regular army from Europe and a prolonged campaign such as France is carrying on in Madagascar.

AMERICAN OCCUPATION OF CORINTO. NEW YORK, April 29 .- A Washington special to the Sun says that if the unof the Navy Department are to be relied upon. Coristo was once taken possession of by the jacktars of the American navy.

Back in 1862 the American sloop-of-war Saranac was fying off the city of Corinto, and one evening the entire starboard watch was given permission to go on shore. During the revels of the evening a dispute arose between several of the tars and natives concerning flittations with some of the native women, and the result was that the Alcalde, or Mayor, was driven from the town, the male inhabiresult was that the Alcalde, or Mayor, was driven from the town, the male inhabitants fled to the interior, and the government building was taken possession of by the tars, and the American colors hoisted. Next morning the officer of the deck espied the flag floating from the mast-pole of the building, and boats were at once ordered on abore to investigate. It was found that every member of the star-board watch was drunk; that the boat-swain thad proclaimed himself president and had taken possession of the city in the name of the Urited States. The Mayor was induced to come back, and was informed that the act was disavowed by the officers of the ship.

A REVOLUTION BEEWING

A REVOLUTION BREWING.

CHICAGO, April 29,-A special from Co-rinto says that, taking advantage of the uneasiness manifesting itself throughout the republic, the opposition party is makthe republic, the opposition party is making an attempt to overthrow the present administration by force of arms. The government is aware of the scheme, and is adopting measures to nip it in the bud. Martial law has been proclaimed, and recruits are being enrolled. It is reported that the British Consul has been handed his passports. The Governor of the Mosquito Territory has been recalled, but refuses to surrender his authority unless compelled to do so by force.

At Corinto the customhouse and postoffice remain closed and the British flag flies over the customhouse. Order prevails. A dispatch from San Juan del Sur announces that the Wild Swan has arrived there. There is reason to believe that the English will retailate for the closing of the port of Corinto by blocking San Juan del Sur, Greytown and Bluefields. The running of all trains is suspended. No one is allowed to bring provisions into the neighborhood and supplies are running short. The night passed quietly. Two patrols of foreigners and marines guarded the town.

PLENTY OF RUMORS.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—While there were many rumors flying about the city today touching the state of affairs at Corinto, some to the effect that the difficulty had been patched up, and that the British had withdrawn on the basis of a submission of the British claim to arbitration,

CHICAGO, April 29 .- (Special Dispatch.) Wheat has gone up 5 % cents since April 8, and the feeling on the Board of Trade is that P. D. Armour is at the head of a big corner. It is pretty well known that Armour owns about 12,000,000 bushels of Armour owns about 12,000,000 bushels of wheat on Chicago elevators alone.

July wheat sold on April 8 for 56 1-8 cents. Today it brought 55% cents, and the gain on 12,000,000 bushels by this advance would be $1,170,000, but if Armour is "running a corner," or if he is foreing the price of wheat upward because he is largely "long" on the market or holds many contracts for wheat to be delivered to him in July, this sum represents but a fraction of his profit.

the extent of 50,000,000, and some estimate his holding at 100,000,000 bushels. Should the smaller of these estimates be correct, his profits in the last three weeks approximate $5,000,000. If the larger should be right, he has made by the advance the enormous sum of $10,000,000. But it is said that no one on the outside knows anything definite about Armour's business. The indications of the market are that it is being handled, and the conclusion is matural that the man who is known to be the heaviest holdier in the country of such wheat should be the one who is the most interested in the advance of the price.

Every Monday for three weeks has seen the price of the market up, and there is no sign yet of reaction. On the contrary, every one bullves that prices will continue to chumb, and so strong is this belief that the most confirmed bear will not dare to sell July wheat. Today outside markets respended, but slowly, and evidently under pressure. A GODSEND TO SHIPMASTERS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Every iron ship in the harbor, with one exception, has been chartered. This is a condition of affairs which has never before existed at this port. A year ago the bay was crowded with idle British ships, but one after the other they have been engaged at prices ranging from 25 to 31 shillings.

The sudden demand for wacat-carrying vesels was a mystery until today, when the statement was made that the 200,000 tons of syndicate wheat was to be sold and shipped to Liverpool. The engaged toninge in port now amounts to 58,583, while at least forty more vessels which are on the way to San Francisco have also beer engaged. A GODSEND TO SHIPMASTERS.

Waller, imprisoned in France official records of the Navy Department are to be relied upon. Coristo was once taken possession of by the jacktars of the American navy.

Back in 1867 the American sloop-of-war Saranae was tying off the city of Corinto, and one evening the entire starboard watch was given permission to go on shore. During the revels of the evening a dispute arose between several of the tars and natives concerning filtrations with some of the mative women, and the result was that the Alcalde, or Mayor, was driven from the town, the male inhabi-

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The representations which Ambassador Bustis was instructed to lay before the French government touching the confinement of exUnited States Consul Waller in Madaguacar, and his subsequent deportation to France, were extremely courteous in tone, and were intened to develop the Prench side of the case. It was stated that as Waller is an American, the Department of State feels bound to inquire into all the points in his case, to be informed specifically of the nature of the charges against him and of the evidence upon which he was convicted.

The report of United States Consul Wester, who succeeded Waller as United States Consul there, while substantially confirming the newspaper reports of the case, was not sufficient to satisfy the department, which desires an accurate statement of all the facts before determining what its attitude shall be in this matter. THE FUTURE OF JAPAN.
WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Japanme Minister at Washington publishes in the May number of the North American Review a statement regarding the future of Japan. Kurino acknowledges that in the past Japan has received from the United States proof of a spirit of altruigm rare, if not unique, in the intercourse of nations, but he points out that the intercourse of nations, but he points out that the interest which Americans have hitherto taken in the East has been in the main sentiment. He thinks there are signs, however, that this is now giving way to the distinct recognition of the fact that no. Western power has greater or more vital concern in Eastern affairs than the United States.

He insists that the Japanese are actuated by the wish to show that they are capable of triumphs in peace as well as victories in war. In fact, the military affairs of the country have been developed only as indispensable to the national wellthe May number of the North American affairs of the country have been developed only as indispensable to the national welfare. He hesitates to predict what the future of Japan will be, but one fact is certain, that the whole empire, in every department of labor and enterprise, has partaken of the forward movement which began with Japan's emergence from the sleep of centuries, and while fallure has been met in some directions, the general advance has been so marked and so successful as to afford the amplest promise of future prosperity and continued progress.

NO "ENTÄNGLING ALLIANCES."

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The attitude of the United States in the Eastern was trouble has been clear to the various pow-ers interested. In brief, it is that the un-varying policy of this country is not to form alliances which may involve it in emplications with the countries of Europe-or Asla.

It is a reassertion of the policy of isolation, except insofar as the United States may be able to exercise a kindly or advisory influence toward the adjustment of trouble involving Eastern nations. The foregoing is now accepted by diplomats here as the pulky which will guide the United States in the pending European complication over the Japan-China settlement. It is known positively that Italy's policy is that of a neutral, but that it favors the execution of the Japan-China agreement as aready made, and to this extent its symthies are with Japan. This will not, wever, go to the extent of opposing the asso-Franco-Germanic alliance. It is un-Russo-Franco-Germanic alkance. It is un-deracted that Great Britain's course is along the same lines. So far as the United States is concerned, there will be no co-operation, as already stated, except in such kindly way as may seem for the interest of all concerned, but always short of an alliance.

NEW YORK, April 29.—E. O. Leech, Director of the Mint under President Harrison, and now vice-president of the National Union Bank of this city, said: "It looks as if Germany would call an international monetary conference, and England has decided to participate in it if naturally take kindly to it. Congress has already made provision for delegates to the conference, and it follows as a matter of course that this country will be represented.

"I believe that if the great commercial nations of the world should agree to coin gold and silver at a uniform ratio the value of silver would for a long time be maintained at approximately such coinage ratio. It is true that the silver sgitation here and the saturation of our currency with silver money has done much toward creating a sentiment in favor of 'be gold standard. I believe a vast majority of our people would favor international bimetalism."

will never rive it up, and the sconer the minimas of aggressive, insolect, comoditated wealth and strongant apostics of gold monometallism realise and act upon this fact, the better and safer will it be for them in the future of the country. In every State and Territory from the western aids of the Allegheny Mouthins to the Pacific Coast, silver has been known and indorsed by people for three-quarters of a century, not merely as sound money, not merely as honest money, but as land-differ smoney besides. With it their homes were bought and paid for and not much patience remains with them or their descendants for those who stand and stigmatize the great white metal, which has done its work so well.

"And the need of the white metal in the happins of the people is even greater now than ever before. There is scarcely a speck of gold in sight of the laboring classes. In round numbers there are nearly $400,000,000 of gold money in the world, and about the same amount of nilver. With silver demonstized, the plain people, the wage-workers and those who trake and sell the produce of the soil, will handle specie money no more forever, and will catch even a glimpse of it but seldom. Gold will be hoarded and hid away in the wauts of the great magnates of wealth, and the people in their business will be put on the half rations of paper money, to which the shrinking and contraction from a basis of bimetallism to a basis of monometarilism will reduce them.

"I wish to impugn the motives of no one, and to avoid hard words in discussion, as far as possible, but the time has come when speech, though temperate, should be very plain. Parties from this time forward will not be framed to cheat on this subject, whatever may have been done herectofore. No dubious phraseology or stradding planks on the question of silver will be colerated in the next national conventions that are to take place in this country. Words will mean what they any, and men will be nominated whose lives and records will considiute a guarintee that the principle

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.,) April 29.—Senator Voorhees in a talk today with the Sentinel's Washington correspondent made the following statement of his views in regard to the free coinage of silver:

"I do not regret the agitation of the silver question. Sooner or later it has to be definitely settled whether the labor-producing people of this country can be builted out of one-half of their debt-paying money, or whether they will stand up like free men and protect and defend the money named and provided in the Constitution, gold and silver both—not one of the precious metals alone, but both—and on terms and conditions as to coinage and use on absolute equality. That is the question immediately before us and no better time than now will ever be found for its settlement.

"The tariff will not return to plague us again for years to come. It has been so widely and equitably adjusted that no attempt at a general revison is now in contemplation in any quarter. There is no longer any issue in regard to the Federal election laws and the threat of the bayonet at the ballot-box. No great national question is at this time in the way of a full, free and fair discussion of money, currency, precious metals, ratios, standards of value, units of account and payment, and the bearings which all these things have on the general welfare of the great body of American people. The giver question itself is also plainer to the view, less obscured by the craft of its enemies than at any time since the assassination of silver money took piace in 1873. There are no legislative switches now in existence to lead the people away from the main track. No cowardly makeshifts or insincere shams can any longer darken discussion or betray honest countries.

"The Sherman act, which was conceived in a rancorous hostility to silver, and CONGRESSMAN LOUD'S VIEWS.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—Congressman Eugene F. Loud, who returned to San Francisco on Saturday, thinks that the financial question will be the important issue of the campaign of 1895. The tariff, he says, will not be touched upon.

"The House is to be Republican this year and the Senate and President are Democratic," he said. "It would be folly under the circumstances to upset the condition of trade by introducing a new tariff bill in the House that will be beaten in the Senate. I am confident that the next Congress will pass a Nicaragua Canal bill. This may not be the same as that passed by the Senate this year, but it will include its most important features, giving perhaps less advantage to the company and more to the government."

Gen. Warner's statement that a Democratic silver candidate for President could not be possibly elected, but that a Republican silver candidate might, was disputed by Mr. Loud. "The Democrats have the South, ho matter whom they put up," said he. "With a pro-silver man they would have a good chance of a sweeping victory in the West and the Middle States as well. The Republicans, on the other hand, have no solid mass of votes to shifts or insincere shams can any longer darken discussion or betray honest councils.

"The Shorman act, which was conceived in a rancorous hostility to silver, and brought forth into a law by an iniquitous betrayal of silver's free coinage, has been buried in an unhonored grave, over which no lament will ever's be heard. I have never been willing to admit that our system of currency should be dictated by Emgland and other foreign countries, and I repel that idea now. The real and vital issue now presented to the American people is the proposed elimination of silver from our currency, its total overthrow and destruction as a money metal, and the use of gold alone. This is what is meant now by the movement against the free coinage of silver, whatever disclaimers may be made to the contrary. This movement means the destruction of one-half of the debt-paying money of the United States and of the world. If it should be so, it would double the burdens of every debtor and multiply the gains and income of every creditor wherever the sun shines.

"The debts of the American people at this time, both public and private, are appalling in amount. They have been contracted on a bimetalic basis, and it is now proposed to make them payable on the basis of gold alone. The two metals also proposed to make them payable on the basis of gold alone. The two metals also constitute the specie basis for such paper constitute the specie basis for such paper currency as may be put in circulation. If silver money is destroyed, paper circulation must be contracted in that proportion. Every form and kind of money must become that much scarcer and harder to get in exchange for labor and the products of labor. Such a policy is, to my mind, simply horrible. I have not a particle of doubt as to the result of the contest now going on. The enemies will be driven to the wall. Silver money will not only survive, but it will be fully restored to its old place as a leading and controlling factor in the developments and the progress of the country. Nor have I any fear for the future strength and harmony of the Democratic party. Some men may discard its principles and abandon its organization, but others will take their places.

"I have been in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio fixed by Jefferson all my life and whatever others may do I shall neither abandon my principles mor my party. I am not unmindful of the vague cry now raised about sound money, honest money, and it causes me to glance back over the career of silver in American history. I discover that Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, John Marshall and Monroe indorsed silver money as sound and honest and that the same views were entertained throughout the most important epochs of our country's trials, growth and glory, by Jackson, Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Silas Wright, Marcy, Horatio Seymour, Benton, Chase, Douglas, Hendricks, Morton and Lincoln.

"The truth is that the danger from the coinage of silver as money in this country never occured to a sane mind under greed, avarice, unholy speculation reared its serpent head and aimed a vicious deadly blow at the honored dollar of the fathers of 1873. Since that time we have had nothing by financial distrust, depression and ruinous panies. The five years which immediately followed the demonstration of silver in 1873 were freighted with more calamity and suffering on the part of the laboring and producing people tha

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—For the first time since the 'charge of murdering Miss Marian Williams in the Emanuel Baptist Church of this city was formally made against W. H. T. Durrant, the prisoner has consented to talk. He spoke first of the Lamont case, saying:

"Poor Bianche. I am accused of strangling her and then remaining unmoved at the details of the most horrible crime in history. No one will ever know the sorrow I feel and no one could begin to comprehepd my thoughts even if I were to tell all the anguish her terrible fate has caused me. I could not have murdered that girl. I liked her too well, not better than any one else in the world, but I respected and admired her and we were good friends.

"Judging by newspaper communications, I arz looked upon as a coid-blooded, diabolical monster. I am painted as a devil in human shape and very little is said in favor of the possibility of any other person having killed those two girls, but when my trial is over the world will know that I am innocent. My composure and self-control since my arrest are held against me, but no person will ever know the terrible-ordeal I am undergoing. It is said that I use opiates to induce sleep. That is a lie. I am able to sleep well because my conscience is clear of all crime. I am not of a nervous temperament and have always been able to keep cool."

He accuses the police of working solely from the premise that he was guilty of the crimes and ignoring all other clews. as not to interiere with the preliminary examination of Durrant for the Williams' murder, which will be resumed tomorrow.

Detsetive Simmons of Portland, a Pinkerton detective, formerly located at the headquarters of that agency in Chicago, arrived in this city today and, in company with Detective Gibson of the local force visited Emanuel Baptist Church, and took copians notes during the consultation which followed in regard to the murder of Miss Lamont and Miss Williams. Those people who favor the defense say that the coming of the detective shows that the prosecution feels that its case is not as strong as it claims. Another bit of important evidence has just come to light that may strengthen the circumstantial evidence against Durrant in the Williams case. It is the statement of Chauncey M. Johnson, clerk of the State Board of Trade exhibit, who states that he saw Durrant in company with a young lady answering Miss Williams's descripcion in the room of the board on April 12, about 5 o'clock. He remembers them because he told them that they would have to leave, as it was closing time. He saw Durrant's picture in the papers, and it seemed familiar to him. He puzzled over it till he had recalled the incident of April 12. Then to make sure that they had been there he examined the visitors' register, when, to his surprise, he discovered that the page of the book for April 12 was missing—some one had torn it out.

The peculiar circumstance in this matter is that Miss Williams left her former home in Alameds on April 12, reached this side of the boay at 4:20 p.m., and yet did not reach the house of her friend, Mrs. Voy, until after 5 o'clock. It was that night between 9 and 9:15 o'clock that she was MINNEAPOLIS, April 29.—A Tribune minning from Devil's Lake, N. D., says that, after sifting it from available sources, there seems no doubt that the serious state of affairs at Turtle Mountain is mostly, if not entirely, caused by Canadian half-breeds. The protext is that Indians lay claim to a large tract of land in the Devil's Lake district, about nine mifflon acres of which the United States has assumed title to, but to which it is generally conceded the Indians have certain treaty rights.

The American Indians and half-breeds seem halfshee to wait the deliberations of the United States Commissioner in settling the question, but the Canadian half-breeds, whose claims are denied and seem to be without equity, persist in asserting the claims, disturbing settlers, exciting American half-breeds, committing timber depredations, and going even to the extent of burning houses in their district. Their preliminary examination is set for Friday afternoon. Maguire, who is wanted in connection with the "greengoods" business, has not yet been caught. An effort was made to have the bail of White and Wire reduced, but United States Attorney Foote strenuously objected, and Commissioner Heacock deferred to Foote's wishes in the matter as being quite reasonable. In the past, whenever an attempt has been made by Federal authorities to successfully prosecute "green-goods" swindlers, those smooth workers have usually managed to cheat justice by the assistance of very light bail or straw-bonds. The testimony given today shows a most peculiar and amusing state of affairs, and it appears from what has been brought out that Rushforth, if he paid out the $1000 that it was alleged he did, paid it out for nothing. According to his story told in court he gave it to Bulson in two payments of $500 each with the understanding that it was to be used for the purpose of securing the adoption of his plans. It seems that the indictments were made on the strength of Ward's testimony before the grand jury.

Several of the jurors testified at the trial today that Ward stated before them that Bulson approached him before the plans were considered, and told him that there was $1000 in it if Rushforth's plans were accepted, and for him to see Brown. The first $500 was paid to Bulson, who gave two-thinds to Ward, the latter giving a third to Brown. Another $500 was paid to Bulson. He turned two-thirds of this over to Brown, and Brown gave a third to Ward. The amusing feature of the case consists of the fact that Brown voted against Rushforth's plans from the start, and his vote was recorded against them on the final ballot when they were accepted. There is much wonder here that Rushforth has not been indicted. The case goes on lomorrow.

HE WAS TRAPPING.

"Doc" Davenport's Story of a Government Detective.

PORTLAND (Or.,) April 29.—"Doc o the charge of having molds in his pos session and of coining spurious dollars. He made the following statement to the court:

"Last December a man giving his name as Charles French called at my house and eaid he would like to remain there several weeks trapping. One day he asked me bow to make counterfeit dollars, knowing that I understand the business, because I had served a term for the offense eight years ago. He gave me 50 cents with which I bought plaster and solder. I made the molds and a few coins with them. French told me that solder. I made the molds and a few coins with them. French told me that he only wanted to learn out of curiosity and I did not see any harm in showing him. But soon afterwards I was arrested on this charge. The man French was simply employed by Special Agent of the Treasury N. B. Harris to corner me."

Judge Bellinger demanded an explanation from the District Attorney. The latter said that French had not instigated Davenport; that he had simply aught Davenport in the act. But this explanation did not satisfy Judge Bellinger at all. He said: "I will investigate this matter. Sentence will not be passed at this time. Detectives of the government have no right to aid in the commission of crime and then come into this court to ask that the crimnal be punished. I want it understood that persons who go about instigating the crime will not find their business successful in this court."

State Supreme Court had decided that the original assessment was valid. The railroad officials maintain that as the decision of the Clifornia court is an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, there is no bar to receive the money for the taxes as reassessed. The first installment was paid in October before the State court rendered its decision. The amount tendered was $200,000. The railroad officials say that the tender was made to save interest on the money involved, even should the United States Supreme Court sustain the State court.

MOUNTAINS OF WHEAT.

Fair's Corner of Two Hundred Thousand Tons to be Sold.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—The Even-ing Bulletin says that the 200,000 tons of "syndicate wheat" which has been stored "syndicate wheat" which has been stored for two years in the warehouse of the late James G. Fair at Port Costa has been placed on the market. The wheat is of the crops of 1892, 1893 and 1894. It is said that the Luning estate loaned Fair $100,000 to corner the wheat, and that the Luning estate management, nervous for fear that weevil might damage its security, has pressed the Fair estate to take up this loan. The 1892 and 1893 wheat cannot, under the rules, be sold on 'change, so the wheat will be advertised for buyers generally. The wheat is estimated to be worth $1,800,000.

Whether sold here or not, getting so large a quantity of wheat out of port will be a problem. Negotiations have been made for a shipment of part of the wheat by rail to New Orleans and thence to Liverpool. It would require 5000 cars to move half the stored syndicate wheat. To ship all the wheat to Liverpool would take seventy-five vessels.

The Stockton Harvester Company Gets Ninety Thousand Dollars.

STOCKTON, April 29.—The decision of cultural Works against the Glenns Falis and seventy-two other insurance companies to recover $90,000 as insurance on property of the plain.iff, burned several years ago, was rendered today, it being in favor of the harvester company for the full amount.

When the property was burned, the harvester company and the insurance people submitted the matter to arbitration, and an award of $90,000 was made. The harvester people accepted this, but before it was paid the matter was brought before the attention of the insurance companies, which caused them to refuse to pay any such sum. Suit was then brought.

The case has been appealed to the Supreme Court, and this is the second trial and second decision in favor of the harvester company. The insurance companies alleged that fraud had been committed, and the burned property, although insured for $127,000, was worth scarcely anything.

eral of the crew, including firemen and oilers, have recently been discharged for the sake of retrenchment, the others doing double duty.

Second Engineer Ward, left alone in the engine-room, had to oil certain machinery. While so doing, it is believed, he fell overboard and was drowned. Meanwhile the engine-room was quite deserted. When the pilot approached the Sacramento draw-bridge, which was closed, he signalled to slow down. Repeated ringing had no effect, so the pilot tried to swing the steamer around. The fireman, hearing the pilot's signals, suspected something wrong, and, hastening to the deserted engine-room, reversed the engines just in time to save the steamer and probably the lives of its passengers.

HAS A NEW ARC LAMP.

Interesting Experiment in Lighting Is Being Made.

(Chicago Tribune:) A new arc lamp is now being tried in Chicago which promises to make an innovation in electric lighting. The lamp, which varies in a number of essential features from the arc lamps in common use throughout the city, is the invention of a Cleveland (O.) man named William Landus, Mr. Landus first named William Jandus. Mr. Jandus first began working out his ideas in 1886, but it was not until last year that the patents were finally granted covering the main points of his invention. Since that time a company has been engaged in manufactur-points of his invention. Since that time a company has been engaged in minufacturing the lamps, and they are now being tried in Chicago for the first time.

The new lamp, which is called the Manhattan, has for its essential principle the exclusion of oxygen from the heated carbons, thereby preventing their combustion. This may almost be said to be a combination of the incandescest and are light principles. This exclusion of oxygen is accomplished by means of two nearly airtight globes, one inside the other, in the inner clobe is of fine-ground glass, six inches high and nearly cylindrical in form. It is closed nearly airtight at the bottom by a metallic base, which holds the negative carbon, and at the top by an iron cap, through which feeds the upper or positive carbon. The outside globe, which may be either of clear or ground glass, is of the size usually seen on are lights. It has the distinction, however, of being sealed at the top by an ornamental iron top and closed nearly air tight at the bottom by a dustpan of the same material. By virtue of this arrangement the inventor claims that the heat of the arc between the two carbon points greatly rarifies the air inside the smaller globe, while A Beaumont (Tex.) dispatch says that George Jones, a halfbred Indian, outraged a vener-able lady named Mrs. Glancy Sunday. Yester-day a posse came upon him and shot him full Justice Addicates venor claims that the heat of the arc between the two carbon points greatly rarifies the air inside the smaller globe, while the oxygen of that which remains in both of the globes is rapidly converted into carbon-monoxide, a gas which will not support combustion. The arc then, burning in a rarified medium of inactive gases, will burn more steadily and of greater length than one exposed to the action of the atmosphere, which results in a brighter and more even light. Besides this the closed globes make the lamp dustless and fire-proof.

more even light. Besides this the closed globes make the lamp dustless and fire-proof.

But the particular feature claimed for the lamp, and the one which, if true, marks another great step forward in the progress of are lighting, is the long life of the carbons. In this lamp, it is claimed, a pair of half-inch carbons of the ordinary length will burn 100, to 200 hours, or, as are lamps are ordinarily used, two weeks. In the old are lamp the size and length of carbons are limited so that a run of six to eight hours necessitates retrimming and supplying new corbons. This is called the single-service lamp. For outdoor use, as in street lighting, lamps are often required in winter to burn fourteen hours at a streeth, so when Brush invented the double carbon lamp ten years ago another great step in advance was taken. Brush's patent consisted in the use of two parallel pairs of carbons so arranged that they fed alternately, thus burning them evenly and increasing the time when the lamp could be safely run, without retrimming to fourteen hours. This patent was in litigation for seven years and was not fully decided in Brush's favor until 1892. The Brush double carbon lamp is called the double-service lamp.

F. H. Prentiss, who is president of the company exploiting the new lamp, gave some further interesting details about it company at Chicago. Three men were injured, none of them seriously, however, and it required the presence of twenty policemen to quell the disturbance.

The funeral of Serst. P. Connelly, U.S.M.C., whose body was found floating in the bay lest Friday, has been held at Newport. R. I., with military honors. An inquest will be held later to ascertain the cause of certain marks of violence found on the body, which lead the medical examiners to suspect foul play.

In the election for members of the Greek Parliament, ex-Premier Tricoupis, leader of the opposition, was unseated by 115 votes. Only about ten of his supporters were elected. On the other hand. M. Delyannis and party received three-fourths of the votes cast. Delyannis is the present Frime Minister.

A St. Paul dispatch says that, regarding the reported Indian outbreak in North Dakota and the sending of troops from Ft. Totten to the scene of the trouble. Msj.-Gen. Merritt says: "There is nothing in it. Some man with a ferritle imagination has started the sendent of the trouble will be sendent of the trouble will be sendent of the trouble will be sendent of the form the same predict of the form the sum of the sendent of the form the sum of the sendent of the sende F. H. Prentiss, who is president of the company exploiting the new lamp, gave some further interesting details about it to a reporter for the Tribune. It is claimed that the current required to operate the lamp is only from four to five amperes, as distinguished from the seven to ten commonly used by are lights. But the same amount of energy is obtained by burning the lamp at seventy to eighty volts. This means that the arc lamps can be put singly on an ordinary incandescent circuit instead of in pairs as arc lamps are now used. The long life of the carbons makes, it necessary for the lamps to "feed" about one-tenth as often as the common type of arc light, hence a much greater steadiness and absence of flickering in the light.

cus operations of the mind. Some of the tests of this instrument made at a recent demonstration by Prof. Scripture were most interesting. Skilled planoforte-players know that one of the main easentials to a smooth and artistic performance is the ability to preas any required number of keys exactly at the same instant. This is much more difficult than is generally believed, but the timer will bring the musician nearer to it than any instrument yet devised. A well-known planist was asked by Prof. Scripture to preside at the plano. He was told to move both hands at the same time in pressing the keys. He was quite sure that he had done so, until the reading of the timer was taken. This showed that his left hand was fifteen-thousandths of a second behind the right. To obtain this record a telegraph key was put under each of the performer's hands. Connected to these was an apparatus including a large spark coil, and two metal recording points which rested on a revolving drum. The drum was covered with smoked paper. The moment each key was pressed a spark was made from its pointer, and the distance between the sparks was told off in thousandths of a second by a tuning-fork adjustment. The planist was told to press the left-hand key when he heard a bass note in a telephone held to his ear. He believed that he pressed the note the instant the note came. An arrangement was at hand by which a mark was made on the drum at exactly the moment the tone occurred in the telephone. On comparing this with the record made by the key it was found that the moment of pressing the key was far behind the sounding of the tone; on an average, not less than 200 cr one-fifth of a second. The length of time occupied by mental action was very much increased in the next test, in which the player was told to press the left-hand key when he heard a bass note, and the right-hand key when a high tona was sounded. Here he had to discriminate between two othings and then to choose between two things and then to choose between two things and then to

The experimenter chouts some word, for example, "house," into a telephone which carries the word to another person in a distant room. This other person shouts back the first thing he thinks of, say "street." The two telephones are so arranged that they make records on the drum where these words are uthered. The time between the actual shouring of the word "house" and that of the word "street" represents the time lost by the mental processes that were going on in the second person. the attention of cotton manufacturers to the necessity of securing improved apparatus for humidifying the air of their mills. He says that, while in Europe many kinds of machines have for some years past been employed for this purpose, in this country the antiquated method of introducing vapor steam into the different departments has held its ground. The advantage of injecting warm, soft air into any apartment of a mill where the air is cold and full of electricity is well understood by the manufacturer. Incidentally, stood by the manufacture to the comfort of the tris very conductive to the comfort of the employees, and working people who are not comfortable will not give the same re-tained to the same rethat an increase of at least 5 per cent. can be gaified in labor in cotton mills by humidifying the air, and a further 10 per cent. can be obtained by the same means in the actual product of the mill. To accomplish this work without injury to the health of the operative, or damage to machinery from dampness, has been made the subject of much study and experimenting, and many machines of greater or less suitability have been devised. The perfect humidifying machine has yet to appear, and inventors might do worse than concentrate their attention in that direction.

THE INFLUENZA AND VOCALISTS. England is in the throes of the influenza and while the nation generally is trying to find out how it is that the doctors do not seem to know anything about it, the great army of vocalists who have suffered from seem to know anything about it, the great army of vocalists who have suffered from the scourge are lamenting their lost voices, and asking how they can be wooed back. And asking how they can be wooed back, and asking how they can be wooed back, so prevalent has been this plague among musicians that the absentees from it have reached at some entertainments the formidable proportion of 30 per cent. One of its effects is aphorfia, an affliction from which amateur vocalists enjoy a remarkable immunity, but which, with cruel perversity, harasses and disables the professional singer. The matter assumed such a serious phase that it has been taken up by a musical journal, which has prescribed a course of treatment calculated to rehabilitate and reawaken the lost voices. The cause of loss of voice, as the oracle sagaciously observes, is want of tone, or general weakness of the system, and the remedy must be a general "building-up." The voiceless vocalist is told that: "Cod-liver oil and compound syrup of hypophosphifes, either alone or together, would be applied externally, with inhalstions of turpentine, fir-wood oil, or creasote, a damp cloth being placed over the head so that perfect inhalation of the medicated steam is insured. The above treatment, with absolute rest of the voice, and patience, will prove beneficial, unless some organic defect is the cause, but medical advice is desirable if possible."

THE EFFECT OF COLORED LIGHT ON

THE EFFECT OF COLORED LIGHT ON

PILANTS.

Although the store of buman knowledge on the subject of the attributes of colors is gradually growing, and we have even gone as far as to differentiate the sounds caused by the falling of a ray of sunshine on cloths of various tints, comparatively little is yet known of the physiological effect of color on human beings. The votaries of the "blue-glass craze." which came into vogue some years ago, who firmly believed that a bath in a flood of colored light was the finest restorative that tired and alling humanity could have recourse to, may possibly have been warrin their generation than those who derided them. Whatever the effect of colored light on individuals may finally be determined to be, its influence on plants is now unquestionably proved. The use of glass of a green tint has for half a century been one of the peculiar characteristics of the planthouses at Kew Gardens near London. In 1889 the experiment was made of substituting white glass for green in the east wing of the tropical fernhouse. This was the result of the observation of the successful cultivation by an amateur horticulturist of ferns with full exposure to the light. The improvement in the growth of the plants was remarkable. In 1892 a portion of the west wing was also reglazed, and the new temperate fernhouse was wholly glazed with white glass. The result has been so remarkably beneficial that it has now been determined to abandon entirely the future use of green glass. Although the store of human knowledge on the subject of the attributes of colors

BUSINESS.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIMES LOS ANGELIES, April 29, 1895.
A correspondent sends us the following extract from the Washington Star on the subject of bank deposits in the various subject of bank deposits in the various ofties of the country:

"Insumuch as Washington is not generally regarded as a city of great business activities, and as there are not many citizens of great wealth, it will probably surprise most readers to learn that the individual deposits in our national banks are exceeded by those of only twelve other cities in the Union. Of course New York stands first in the list, with $302,000,000 on deposit; Boston comes next with $101,000,000; Philadelphia ranks third, with $39,000,000, while Chicago has $46,000,000. Curiously enough, Pittsburgh, with considerably less population, outranks Baitimore by $7,000,000, the former city having $31,000,000 while the latter has only $24,000,000. Cincinnati and Cleveland, the two leading Ohio cities, tie each other with $19,000,000 apiece. St. Louis, that used to fondly talk of herself as the rival of Chicago, falls below both the Ohio cities, having only $18,000,000. Miwaukee and New Orleans have $17,000,000 and $16,000,000, respectively. Brooklyn comes next with $14,000,000. Washington shows a deposit of $10,000,000, which is equaled by that of Detroit and Kansas City. Omsha and St. Paul are a tie at $8,000,000, while leading than the next-door neighbor, has but $7,000,000. But, even more surprising than the reditable showing of Washington, is the poor exhibit made by San Francisco, the commercial and manufacturing emporium of the Pacific Coast, whose national banks are credited with only $4,000,000. None of the other cities on the Pacific Coast is reported to have so much as $1,000,000, which leads to the inference that they play a pretty strong bluff financial game out in those regions."

The article is very much "off" in regard to the showing made by San Francisco. The figures given include only the national banks, because in the East deposits and deposits in all the banks of Los Angeles, which amount to between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000, may safely be compared with those of any city of tike size in the East. As to San Francisco, w

The orange-growers are still feeling much encouraged over the increasing demand for oranges in the East. The regoes into effect tomorrow, and there is every encouragement to believe that this will enable the growers to dispose of the greater part of the seedling crop that is which corporation has entered into an agreement with the Russian oil-producers, the agreement only requiring the signature of the Russian Finance Minister to become operative. This will make the most gigantic trust ever known in the world, and it is difficult to see how anything short of an earthquake or a general uprising of the people can prevent the Standard Oil Company and its allies from charging any price they please for what has become a necessary of life.

It may be said that any persons with capital are able to go and open up new oil fields, as it is not to be supposed that all the profitable oil deposits of the country have yet been developed, but to any one who is aware of the methods pursued by the Standard monopoly—methods which were graphically described in The Times of Sunday—it is evident that, while theoretically possible, opposition to the Standard Oil Company has now become so gigantic a task as to be practically impossible on the part of private individuals, or associations of individuals.

What the end of this business will be it is not easy to foretell. The rise in the price of coil oil is already involving a what the end of this business will be it is not easy to foretell. The rise in the price of coll oil is already involving a severe tax, which bears very hard upon the poorer class of citizens. Such a sudden and unwarranted increase in taxation, if made by a government, would lead to the poorer class of citizens. Such a sudden and unwarranted increase in taxation, if made by a government, would lead to something very much like a revolution, and in case the Standard Oil Company should push its power too far it may yet find itself checked in its career. There is no law in this country to prevent persons or corporations from monopolizing a product if they have the power, and charging therefor as much as they please, but there are laws which forbid transportation companies to discriminate in favor of certain individuals or corporations in order to enable the latter to crush out competition. If these laws were properly enforced the Standard Oil Company would no longer have such easy sailing as it has at present.

London Financial Market.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Evening Post's London cablegram says that the situation in the far East favorably affected all the speculative markets today. There was a general fall in South Americans. American securities reacted with other speculative stocks, but closed a trifle better. Consols' were better. Colonial stocks were also in good demand; although the tendency of the colonies to make new large loans is bad. Queensland and New Zealand have both just issued large loans and a Victorian issue is expécted. The Indian gevernment announces the renewal of 22,000,000 in treasury bills. This means no fresh sterling loan. Rothschild is steadily buying bar gold from the open market. London Financial Market.

CHICAGO. April 29.—For the first time in several weeks there was a fairly good supply ocattle, the receipts being stimates at 14.500. As a general decline of 10615c, and dressed-beef firms supplied 'themselves with common to choice steers weighing 29261500 lbs. at 3.906 5.90. The bulk of their purchases were made at 4.7565.75. Cows sold at 1.5524.50, largely at 2.0064.00. Texas cattle numbered about 1500 head and sold better than ordinary natives. Hog rececipts were about 28.000 head and prices broke as soon as trade commenced. There was a reduction of from 5615c per 100 lbs. At the reduction there was fair activity, heavy hogs selling at 4.5064.85 for common to extra, lightweights at 4.5064.90 for common straight lots to assorted lots, and pigs at 4.2564.75. The bulk of the hogs sold at 4.7564.90. In sheep there was a badly-overstocked market today, the receipts being 19,000 head. Common flocks were to numerous, and trade in that class was dragging at a decline of 10c or more. Native sheep sold at 2.0064.80, chiefly at 3.50 and upward. Westerns sold at 3.0064.50; Texans, 1.2563.50, and lambas at 2.0065.40. Chicago Live Stock Market.

ELECTRICAL PROGRESS.

WHAT IS GOING ON IN THE GREAT FIELD.

The Encroachment of the Electric Locomotive in Railroading— Mill Light in India--Plowing by Electricity.

spondence.) In the opinion of many ex-perts, the time when the electric loss momotive for all kinds of railroad work is much nearer than has generally been imagined. In support of this belief, Will-iam Baxter, Jr., points out than no engitured to say, three or four years ago, that at the present time the electric motor would be making such inroads into the legitimate field of the steam locomotive as it really making today. Mr. Baxter maintains that the ability of electricity to compete with steam has always been underestimated. The main reason for this is that about the only direction in which motor as follows: First, the cost of repairs is less with electric than with steam locomotives. The mechanism is far more simple; there are not so many moving parts, and these parts are not so much exposed to the action of mud, sand, water, etc. In the second place, the miles run per day, or, in other words, the hours of service obtained per day, are less with steam than with electric traction. Consequently, the cost of labor per mile run as much greater, and the amount of work done with a given sum invested in locomotives is less than with mitors. Locomotives running at an average speed of thirty or forty miles per hour do not make any more miles per day than motor cars which only average about one-third these speeds. The reasons that locomotives cannot be run as many hours as motors is their limitations of wear and tear. They cannot stand continuously the rough-and-tumble treatment that motors are subject to, and they have to be run into the roundhouse and be thoroughly examined and cleaned up for the next day's run. The importance of the bearing of this fact is evident. When electric motors of larger size and for higher speed, come, as they inevitably will, to take the place of locomotives, they will be run approximately the same number of hours as the motors now in use, and will therefore eover from two and a half to take the place of locomotives, they will therefore cover from two and a half to true times the distance now covered by locomotives. The third fundamental advantage of electric traction in this competition is that the motors used to draw a train can be placed under one of the cars. This will reduce the weight of the rain, and therefore the power required to move it. The motor car could be made much lighter than the becomotive at present used, and this would give a further saving in power. Less weight would be carried on any one pair of wheels. arried on any one pair of wheels, and the weight would be and the weight would be more thoroughly spring-supported. This would materially reduce the strain on the track, and consequently the cost of maintenance.

A NEW DECORATIVE

A NEW DECORATIVE EFFECT IN ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

It has been suggested that one of the most promising fields in which employment for women can be found is decorative electric lighting, and the wisdom of the suggestion has in many cases been amply confirmed. The credit of the general introduction of the yellow silk shade for the incandescent lamp, whereby the unkindliness of the electric light toward complexions in which art has supplemented nature was neutralized, is said to belong to a prominent society lady in New York, and a young lady in London is now deriving a considerable income from the designing of lamp shades, the main feature of which is the use of feathers, variously colored, in place of glass or paper. One of the most beautiful devices yet utilized in decorative electric lighting now comes from Paris. A well-known Parislan society lady, stimulated possibly by her reputation of having the most exquisitely-appointed drawing-room in the city, was struck with the dearth of new effects in lamp shading. The frosted glass shade served its purpose well under ordinary conditions, but often a more brilliant light that was still devoid of harshness was needed. Paper and silk shades were also found to absorb too much light, and, moreover, possessed the great disadvantage of needing to be replaced every few days in consequence of being charred or socied. While searching for some means of securing brightness and softness exactly in the desired ratio, the lady was attracted by the effect of the playing of the sun's rays on a Japanese cloth made of glass beads, which hung at one of her windows. The difficulty was solved. Wrapping a piece of the beaded cloth around an incandescent lamp, she turned on the switch, and a thousand gems flashed through the room. Calling in an electrician, she ordered him to make a shade of glass beads in the shape of the lamp bulb, and to devise his own fastening. The shade was made and attached to the lamp by a circular clasp of the "lazy tong" type. Further designs growing out of the sa It has been suggested that one of the

MILL LIGHTING IN INDIA.

A new and interesting field for electric lighting has been suggested in the construction of some large mills in Bombay. The proprietors of these new factory buildings are baout to have their cardroomlit by electricity, not for the purpose of working at night, but to supplement daylight, which, in cloudy weather, and at times, even in the morning and the evening, is insufficient for the proper carrying on of the work. In Bombay the ordinary practice in the construction of mills appears to have been to make every story as wide as it could be without impairing its illumination by daylight. Whenever extensions were proposed, the first consideration was the utilization of daylight, and this question was allowed to dominate almost every other in the plans of construction. The hampering effect of such conditions can easily be imagined. It is now found that by combining electrical lighting and good ventilation, extensions can be made in any direction where the cheapness of land or other considerations make it desirable. In other words, if a factory is surrounded by buildings and has much of the bright light which is so essential to certain textile industries cut off, its work can go on, and even in the gloom of the rainy season neither the quantity or the quality of the product is affected.

POPULIAR ELECTRICAL THEORIES.

A history of popular misconceptions on electrical subjects would make entertaining reading. The superintendent of a California electric light station tells that among a thousand puzzling inquiries that were addressed to him on the night that the electric light was started in his city, was the poser: "Where is the hole in the wire that the juice comes through?" An electrical-supply firm in Nova Scotia has itsely received the following letter from a Cape Breton correspondent: "Will you kindly

PLOWING BY ELECTRICITY.

PLOWING BY ELECTRICITY.

A successful application of electricity to plowing has been made on a German farm. Two "double-ender" piowa-were used; one cut two furrows the total width of twenty-four inches; and a depth of nins and a half inches; the other was a four-plow machine. Both worked equally well. The power required for the smaller plow was about eight horse, a twelve-horse portable engine being employed to drive the dynamo. For the larger plow sixteen-horse power engine was used. Running one plow at only four miles as hour, the amount of work done was about one-half that of animal power. A was stretched across the field and a anchored at either end. The anchor light and easily moved. The chain around the shaft of the motor, a plows were drawn steadily and from side to side. The feasibility give considerable stimulation to the growth of the plants.

(American Cultivator:) While salt may not be a fertilizer in itself, it certainly benefits many crops when applied in cer-tain forms. The best asparagus raised in tain forms. The best asparagus raised in this country comes from Oyster Bay, L., and this is due largely to the peculiarity of the soil. The land is all very sandy, with a regular subsoil and pretty well impregnated with saline matter. Seaweed, fish and general debris washed up by the waters of the Long Island Sound are used for fertilizers by the asparagus-growers, and occasionally in the winter time the beds are actually flooded with the sea awater. In this way the soil gets a great amount of saline matter incorporated into it, and this sality condition is thought to give considerable stimulation to the growth of the plants.

Salt applied directly to asparagus beds has never given the same good results as when placed there as deposits from salt water or the presence of some other substance that causes the better growth of the plants. Salt applied to beds in a small way, however, proves of some beneft, especially on land located back from salt water. Most of the best asparagus beds are situated along the coast, and considerable deposits of salt must be carried to the land by the winds. The ocean air is heavily impregnated with sait, and every shower precipitates large quantities of salt on the soil.

Planting and cultivating asparagus is not a difficult work if done properly, but usually it has to be learned by experience.

plant the roots, how much manure to apoly, and how to cultivate without breaking the crowns and roots.

After this bed is started and experimented with for a season, a new and ideal bed can be planted from it without much expense. If the plants are too thick on the experimental bed they will serve so much the better for starting a new and larger one. On the new bed apply plenty of fertilizers. Plow them in thoroughly, and weed out all foreign growths, and make the soil as soft and fine as possible. When the bed is ready the work of getting the plants must be attended to.

On the old bed let the stalks go to seed, and when they are ready to fall out of the pod cut the stalks and whip them over the field. Early in the spring the seeds will sprout if they have been covered lightly with a harrow or spading fork, and these small plants by June should be transplanted either direct to the new bed, or to rich plats until they get larger. They should be planted in the new bed by attum at least. Much them heavily during the winter, and in the spring uncover, fertilize and cultivate. Do not cut too closely the first or second year. Give the plants a chance to get thoroughly established before marketing.

(Riverside Press.) One of the funny things that has resulted from the visit of the Half-million Club—which was supposed to have come south largely to secure for the North some of the new population which naturally drifts into Southern California—is that several of the party have been so taken with things in this end of the State that they have themselves invested here. One member of the party made a large investment at Los Angeles, another at Pasadena and another in Riverside Valley. This is a good way to secure that "United California" about which they talk so eloquently. "Where their treasure is there will their heart be," and nothing will tie the State together better than to have its capitalists personally interested in its various sections.

ALASKA'S RESOURCES.

James Sheakley, Governor of Alaska, in his second annual report to the Sec of the Interior, makes known many interesting facts regarding the resources of that far-off corner of the United States. His report, as summarized by the Chicago Tribune shows among other things that the fisheries have been successful, that the mines have yielded profitable returns, and that the population has been largely augmented by immigration: also that crime is less frequent and law and order quite as enforced as in the older communities. The natives are purchasing lumber erecting modern style houses, have improved methods of preparing food and clothing, and are making steady progless toward civilization. The to tal population is 29,644, and there are thirty-five schools of all kinds. The only apparent drawback to Alaska's happiness is the fact that, not-withstanding the efforts of the Collector of Customs, his deputies, and all the other civil officers of the Territory, intoxicating liquors are imported tar ded, and sold without stint in every white settlement in the Territory: The food fishes will be the most valuable of Alaska's marine products, as the fur seal and seal otter are rapidly disappearing. The report says the cod-fish banks are extensive and inexhaustible, and halibut exist in great numbers; besides more than a hundred les of food fishes are to be found in Alaskan waters. The catching and canning of salmon have become an organized industry of large proportions Beginning in 1883 with a pack of 36, 000 cases, it has rapidly increased until in 1891 the Alaskan pack counted to nearly 800,000 cases. As to mining interests, the Governor states that the manipulation of lowgrade gold-bearing quartz is easy, successful and profitable, and that an extensive mining business is now carried on in the Territory.

As our knowledge of Alaska and its great resources increases year by year, it becomes more and more apparent that it is worth many times its cost to the United States. The purcha price was about $7,000,000, whereas st any one of the great industries canable of development there would yield more than $7,000,000 in a single year, if properly developed.

Great Britain had had the courtesy to accede to the request of the United States for a two-weeks' respite in the Nicaragua affair, the $75,000 indemnity would have been paid within that time. But the British, upon learning that Nicaragua had not agreed to pay, at once occupied the port of Corinto and thus precipitated the crisis. Had the delay been granted, the Washing ton government could no doubt have aded Nicaragua that it would b to her interests to give John Bull his pound of flesh, although his de mand was excessive. The precipitate occupation of Corinto, under the cir-cumstances, was insulting to the United States government.

In turn, the British press would plaster Mr. Cleveland all over fulsome praise of his "states manship."

If the scheme for "Greater New York" miscarries, Chicago will prob ably be the largest city on the American continent before the national cen sus of 1900 is taken. The present population of New York, according to the police census just completed, is 1,863,509, a gain of 348,208 since 1890. A careful census taken about a year age showed the population of Chicago a time to be 1,566,727, or within less than 300,000 of New York's pres ent population.

AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

ORPHEUM.—The bill at the Orpheum this week opens out with Lina and Vani, the acrobatic eccentries who do numerous flying feats that show both skill and agilshe acrobatic eccentrics who do numerous flying feats that show both skill and agility. Mime. Vani does cartwhee's and flap-doodles and handsprings and somersaults in long dresses, and doesn't ruffle a bit of lace or turn a hair. Carroll and Nealy are a gingery pair who do an act that is full of broad horsepiay and that appears to be about as rough as a slogging match. Their turn is one that captures the gallery en musse. When they have finished the itage looks like the wind-up of a cydone, and if hard work counts they certainly earn their money. Walter Ford and Frankie Francis do a novel and a bit risque act which combines a skirt dance, high and supple kicking by the latter in long skirts and conventional dingerie, with the singing of a number of topical and descriptive ballads by Mr. Ford, who makes the most of what vide he has, to which he adds a most commendable enunciation. The chimax of the act is realistically dramatic, and was warmly applauded. The Nawns are quite the best feature of the show, as was the case last week. Tom Nawn has a dry native humor that is captivating, and a brogue that is as Hibernian as the real thing. His roller skating act is delightfully droll and never falls to bring down the house. The Biectric Quartette is excellent. Their grotesque make-up is mot sufficient to disguise their real ability as singers, and they richly earned the encores accorded them. Roger Harding has a phenomenal tenor voice, and their turn is a bright feature of the bill. Mazaz and Abacco do a number of daring equilibritetic and tumbling feats with great skill and destness, and William Howard plays on a cellection of, musical instruments on the slack wire in an eccentric make-up. There was a big house, as usual. There will be a metimee Wednesday afternon and a continuation of the bill all the week.

BURBANK THEATRE.—An interesting production of the "French Spy," with an excellent cast, is on at the Burbank this week. The plot is laid in Algiers, and deals with the war between the natives and the French; it is full of red fire, the clash of battle, struggle and shot.

Argers, and deals with the war between the natives and the French; it is full of red fire, the clash of battle, struggle and shot.

Georgie Woodthorpe, as the dumb spy, handles her part cleverly, and is wonderfully fetching in her pink tights, red and white striped doublet, and red fez perched coquettishly on the side of her pretty head. The first act opens in the French camp in Aiglers, the soldiery grouped picturesquely among the tents. This act closes amid a scene of the wildest excitement, the onslaught of the Bedouin with sword and spear, the valiant struggle and final triumph of the French, and the curtain descends upon a fine tableau, crash and thunder amid red fire, Col. de Courcey in fierce combat with the Bedouin chief, and wounded, but saved from instant death by the swift intervention of the dumb spy's sword. In the second act there is some clever club swinging by Neumann, who closed his performance with a perambulation about the stage upon a globe, the clubs flying with much dexterity. There is an effective scene in the Aigerian prison, when the spy scales the high wall, communicates with her imprisoned lover, and finally, from the top of the wall, shoots a blazing arrow, freighted with a message of warning to the French camp; then she is surprised by the Arabs, and a sword combat ensues, in the midst of which, as the spy is about to be lead to death, the incarcerated sergeant announces that the spy as a woman, whereyon the colonel recognizes her as his affianced bride, clambers out of this prison window, down a conveniently-placed ladder, and folds his betrothed to his manly bosom and defies the assault of the whole savage tribe. The rescue, just as a wholesale beheading match is about to occur, brings the story to a comfortable finale.

COMING ATTRACTION.—The announce ment of the coming of Peter F. Dailey to this city carries with it a promise that there will be a gathering of Dailey to this city carries with it a promise that there will be a gathering of fun-fovers of immense proportions to greet the new star. Peter has long been looked upon a star of the first magnitude, regardless of the fact that his name has never before last season been printed in very bold type. Theater-goers of every degree will be pleased to know of the advancement of this popular comedian and "A Country Sport," Mr. Dailey's play, is already assured of success. Whatever the merit of the play, there is little doubt of the profile Peter making it effervesce with the bubbiling humor of which he is master. The company surrounding Brother Dailey abounds in such happy names as May Irwin, John G. Sparks, Ada Lewis and Andrew Mack, together with a score of others. The sale of reserved seats commenced yesterday morning at the Los Angeles theatre, the engagement beginning Thursday evening.

It is related as a special "drive" at the Southern Pacific and as growing out of a little feeling in connection with the excursion of the Half-million Club. If this is the best grounds for it we doubt if it will be done. Rail-road people do not run trains for spite. It is too expensive a luxury. The time will doubtless soon arrive, however, when such a move will materialize as a straight business proposition.

(San Diego Union:) Manual training as a part of the curriculum of the public schools is a step in the right direction and is deserving of considerable attention by the various boards of education. In substance it is the actual practice of intelligent theories, and by it the scholars are enabled to demonstrate the positive value of what is taught them, and to acquire a practical knowledge that will prove of the greatest value to them in after years. One of the strongest arguments in favor of manual training, apart from the importance attached to the actual skill which is develops, is the tendency of stimulating to even greater intelligence, and the self-reliance which naturally follows the knowledge of personal ability.

Meeting to Further the Hill Sections' Interest.

At the Believue Terrace Hotel last evening a meeting was held in the interest of the improvement of First, Third and other streets to the city limits, including the opening of a boulevard from Pearl street through the northwest portion of the city.

The meeting was organized by the election of James H. Blanchard chairman, and John E. Childs secretary, and, after a free exchange of views, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, in all large cities the convenient hill portions have eventually become the most desirable places for residences; and whereas, the hill portions of this city are not excelled for charming and convenient resident sites, being free from froat in winter, nearly free from fog, and fanned by the salubrious breezes blowing

A committee, appointed to prepare and circulate the necessary petitions and do whatever may be necessary to present the matter to the City Council, and promote an early completion of the several enterprises outlined in the resolutions, comporised: T. D. Stimson, Dr. J. C. Zahn, Will D. Gould, J. H. Blanchard, B. F. Coulter, Capt. John Cross, John S. Maltman, J. M. Witmer, John Bradbury, W. H. Workman, A. MoFariand, O. T. Johnson, Dr. J. P. The meeting then adjourned subject to call of the chairLan of the meeting.

TIRED AND RETIRED.

COL. JOHN BRADBURY'S NEW HERALD TO BE RENEWED.

Syndicate That Coveted the Property Has Secured It—What the Important Changes Are Expected to Be.

It does not sound like news to say that the Herald has changed hands again, but it is to be so recorded, for the third time in pine months. A syndicate of about the same personnel as a former combination that was to have acquired the property some months ago has at last bought out the interests of Col. John Bradbury, and between this date and the 6th prox. Will enter into full possession and control. The purchasers of the Herald are William Lacey, Sr., John F. Francis, W. S. Creighton, T. E. Gibbon, Esq., and others. The details of the deal were perfected yesterday and the formal transfer will be made within the next few days. The new companyq has not yet organized, but it is known that Mr. Lacey will be its president, and it seems to be a foregone conclusion that All Bowen will be business manager. W. S. Creighton will be connected with the paper in an editorial capacity and O. A. Stevens will remain as city editor. The remainder of the cast is not yet determined upon. The policy of the paper will be administration Democratic and it will be carried out on strictly business principles.

The gentlemen named are accomplished in their profession and well fitted to carry out their ambitious plans.

The gentlemen named are accomplished in their profession and well fitted to carry out their ambitious plans.
Col. John bradoury, the retiring young journalist, has had some high-priced experience in the newspaper line, and is understood to have become very tired of his toy and willing to change it for some other bright object that may attract his fancy. It is supposed that his few months' experience has cost him something like $20,000—he putting into the concern his money and the other fellows the experience—a fair exchange is no robbery. The youthful colonel paid $38,000 for a controlling interest in the paper, and has put up for most of the $60,000 worth of "improvements" that have been made. The new purchasers of the paper will pay $72,000 for the plant. The capitalization of the new company is $75,000, but the capital stock is to be increased to $100,000.

Among the former owners of stock in the Herald who will retain their interest in Senator Stephen M. White, who went into the former company with the idea of helping along the enterprise of conducting a first-class Democratic newspaper. Though his colleagues were betrayed, Senator White retained his interest despite the sacrifice which seemed always imminent through the erratic mismanagement of the paper for speculation, but he came near suffering by the acts of those in control. He and other prominent Democrats will remain with the paper and help to give it standing with the party.

With the passing of Col. Bracbury will also go the able Mr. Gaffey, mismanaging editor, Doug White, the business manager, who has been intrenched behind a yearly contract and defied an efforts to oust him, and some of the other improvide talent that will go begging for places. In short, there will be a rattling of bones.

The boys will bear crédentials from the secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. and Chief Glass, to show that they are no common tramps. At Berkeley they expect to work their way through college. They will take with them a small rifle, some fishing tackle, a dog and aluminium cooking utensits, so they can subsist on game when otherwise short of rutions. Their first stop will be at Santa Monfox, thence up the coast to Santa Bartara, thence by stage road through the Coast range to Berkeley.

Variation in the Growth of Trees. The popular idea that trees keep on steadily adding to the growth year in and year out has been fashined by the observations of M. Mer, a French forester. observations of M. Mer, a French forester. M. Mer states that the weather affects the growth of trees as it does that of vegetables. In the dry summer of 1893 the firs of the Vosges grow less than usual, both in height and diameter. A similar effect was produced by the exceptionally cold, wet winter of 1893. The dry spring of 1892 only diminished the growth in length, and the dry autumn of 1887 only checked the growth in thickness. In short, there are good, bad and middling years of growth, and M. Mer considere that foresters will do well to give the matter a great deal more study than has ever been devoted to it.

THE ORIGINAL OF TRILBY. WAS DU MAURIER'S HEROINE

to Believe, Look on This Picture and Then

Once, when I was living in Paris, it was my habit to call on the most beautiful of women every morning, where she stood to receive, impassively, impartially, incomparably, all who habit to call on the most beautiful of women every morning, where she stood to receive, impassively, impartially, incomparably, all who cared to come. And Howard, a young friend of mine, then about 16 years of age, went with me, at my request, now and then, but he went rather unwillingly. He "did not much care for this Venus of Milo," he said. "She might be the finest of all the statues in the Louvre, but she was much too tall, and he couldn't see that she was really a handsome woman."

Well, in those days, "really handsome women" wore Gainsborough hats, so I asked him if he did not think such a woman would look well with her arms restored and slipped into a modish gowgh, and her poor, broken foot complete once more and blen chausse, and her queenly head in a Gainsborough hat.

By such irreverence his eyes were opened and he saw; indeed, he began to invent, saying: "Yes, or at the head of a dinner-table, dagssed like Mme. X., she would be gracious, and her new arms would be bare, beautifully bare, more beautifully than Mme. X.'st"

And afterward he wanted to go with me to the Louvre every morning.

That was the way the charm of the armless goddess found its way into his mind. Now, from the known, let us reason a bit about the unknown.

rrom the known, let us reason a bit about the unknown.

Almost a half a century ago a boy of the almost imaginable nature was receiving the strongest enduring impressions—impressions that the art of his mature, that the art of his mature, the all people, everythers winges. I delight all people, everythers winges, to delight the son's ear. An enduring impression (received a little later) of the whole delightful world of art, that one can never fully apprehend unless one has begun himself to advance along one of the averunes of art. Then, attill a little later, an impression of the life of art students in the Quartier Latin at Paris—this all the more enduring because the experience included almost the last scenes that be beheld with both eyes. Then, and until today, renewed day by day by constant and loving observation of the statue, an impression of ideal womanhood drawn from the same figure that Howard finally "cared for."

Of course, you will know that it was George constant and loving observation of the statue, an impression of ideal womanhood drawn from the same figure that Howard finally "cared for Course, you will know that it was George du Maurier who same so divinely: that it was Mr. du Maurier who, as a boy, would not be turned aside from the stur" at and who passed a happy year in the "der Lathijust before there came the phys...al calamity which has not availed to darken the useful years that followed, but which doubtless intensified the brightness of the remembered period before his loss. And a recent visitor at the house "in a quiet little street that leads from the open heath down to the township of Hampstead" (to be more precise, it is "New Grove House,") has just been telling you. In the pages of a well-known magazine that the house contains two models of the Venus of Milo and that Mr. du Maurier speaks of this statue as his "great admiration."

How has the charm of the armiess Venus wrought in Mr. du Maurier's mind?

I would not ask intrusively. If I knew, I should not tell—unless for the interest of the theme and without personal identification, as one may publish the enlightenment of "Howard" with incidental mention of "Mme. X." But these things "Trilby"—the book itself—discloses. They are open to every one—a fabuious, uncounted public has been admitted freely to examine and discreetly to conjecture.

Open your copp of "Trilby" at p. 379, where Trilby is represented as singing "Au Clair de'la Lune." Her face is in a profile and you have the feeling that you are looking up to have the feeling that you are looking up to have the feeling that you are looking up to have the level of your eyes and turn it until the face is in profile.

Can you have any further doubts as to the original Trilby? Compare the drapery as if falls away from the slightly advanced knee. See how slightly the head has been turned to-ald the full production of the views of the cause Venus did not rise from the wave for the sole purpose of doing credit to the dressmakers, and she did have a or womaniness that not one man only, but each member of a company of friends (as Taffy and the Laird and Little Billee and every one else) might ail love, and innocently love, at the same time. For who should be excluded when supplications are to be brought to the queen of love herself? It would be rather well to fancy how the artist could see the statuesquely smooth wave-lines of the goddess's air disordered and fallen down her back. with a modern unreserve as he has drawn them. It would be a fancy-stirring thing to provide the absolutely-sincere artist sitting before the absolutely-sincere artist sitting before the absolutely-sincere artist sitting before the sabolutely-sincere artist sitting before the same of the venue, "much too to bring her nearer to our own this provides to bring her nearer to our own the same affections, yet never forgetful of the pure white marble figure, "a thing to sober Silenus and chasten Jove himself—a thing to Quixotize a modern French masher!" (The words just quoted are written concerning Trilby on p. 99, in a passage inspired by the thought that Trilby's beauty was ideal, that "she surpassed all other models as Calypso surpassed her nymphs." And the other ideal figure—the Greek ideal—has never been more justly characterized.) And then, after he had thought, all for his own delight, what a superb untutored voice would issue from such a columnar throat if she should speak, and how, if she should sing to finm, it would be an "apothoosis of voice and virtuosity, "Il bel canto' come back to earth," why then perhaps he feigned his Svengail and let him say:

"Himmel! the roof of your mouth is like the dome of the Fantheon—and inside your beautiful chest the lungs are

"Himmel! the roof of your mouth is like the dome of the Pantheon—and inside your beautiful chest the lungs are made of leather! and your breath, it embalms—like the breath of a beautiful white helfer."

As for Trilby's foot, that would seem to be just the last effort (and perhaps the only adequate effort) to restore the lost foot of the Venus. It is a familiar thought that the imagination, if put to it, will create unattainable perfections in the unseen, the unheard, things lost beyond hope of recovery. As Keats has said:

perfections in the unseard, things lost beyond hope of recovery. As Keats has said:
"Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard are sweeter."
Finally, please turn to p. 101, where you may read:
"If our climate were such that we could go without any clothes on, we probably should, in which case—perhaps our bodies and limbs would be as those of the Theseus and Venus of Milo, who was no Venus, except in good looks!"
Instead of disrobing humanity to make it godlike, has Mr. du Maurier perhaps clothed a goddess to make her human—to make Trilby?

Last night in Illinois Hall Prof. George D. Herron gave the first of his series of lectures on "The Christian State; a Political Version of Christ."

These lectures, which have been given by Prof. Herron in other cities of the United States, have attracted so much attention that there was nothing unusual in that the fact that the hall was filled to its utmost capacity by an eager and interested audience. The there was nothing unusual in that the fact that the hall was filled to its utmost capacity by an eager and interested audience. The subject of last night's lecture, the first of the series, was "The Political Appearing of Christ." The lecturer prefaced his remarks by stating that he approached the subject of the Christian state, the fundamental principle underlying the whole course of lectures, from the standpoint of a political and social learner of Christ. He made no attempt, nor was it intended that the lectures should subserve any such purpose, to cater to the views of any political party or any school of social of theological science. The message, as he phrased it, appealed only to those who had faith in an immanent Christ. It was a political order so far only as it was an appeal to all men of all creeds to associate themselves in the search of truth, the search which all the civilized nations of the earth were engaged in. He laid stress on the fact that social progress was chiefly the result of the development of self-knowledge and the independent power of the individual. Now, he said, races were beginning to comprehend the value of organic unity, and political science must henceforth take on social characteristics.

Then, as if fearing that this statement might not be fully understood, he added that all revolutions were to be viewed with fear for, as he said, revolutions, like boomerangs, sometimes work backwards. War was not God's best way of progress for man. He then, by way, of illustration, touched on the Reformation, the French revolution, the great civil war, and the waste of life and power those three great events evidenced. These three things were an admirable illustration of human aponer and force, bad yet siven evidence of.

"White Los Angeles is building at the rate of five new houses a day and getting the cream of immigration, San Francisco is spending its entire time in reading and wrangling about murders and murderers of every description and meting out justice to no one."

Talk of morbid curiosity! Here is an instance so morbid as to reach the point of absolute contemptible contemptibility

"At San Francisco yesterday (Sunday,)" a dispatch says, "Rev. Dr. J. G. Gibson delivered his first discourse since the Emanuel-Church murders (Durrant,) at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church. The serv-ices were announced to begin at 7:45 o'clock in the evening, but long before that hour crowds clamored at the doors of the building for admission. So great be came the crowd that it was deemed advisable to open the doors and fill the church as quickly as possible, and in they poured by hundreds until the building was filled to its utmost capacity."

was filled to its utmost capacity."

It seems a pity in cases like this that police regulations are not more elastic. Viewed from the standpoint of healthy manhood, the police of San Francisco ought to have arrested all of those clamoring at those church doors for admission as accessories "after the fact" to the vilest and most revolting crimes the Christian era has been marked with.

A BURGLAR FOILED.

He Enters a Lodging House But

Gets Nothing. Last Sunday morning at about 2:30 o'clock burglars succeeded in entering the lodg-ing-house at No. 520 South Wall street, ing-noise at No. 520 South Wall street, and were frightened away before they could secure anything of value. They opened several doors by means of burglars' tools, and as soon as it became known that there was some one in the known that there was some one in the house, an alarm was given, and an officer armonaed, but by the time the officer arrived they made good their escape into the darkness. Some of the immates of the house say that there was more than one of them, and they were bareheaded and wore masks. They went all over the house, even to the fourth floor. One of the persons that was awakened by the window-raising saw them coming into their room and caffled out who was there, but had no weapon, or probably the world would be rid of one burglar.

A Duck

Of a cottage of five rooms, new, very well built, rooms large, plate-glass in parlor baywindow, fine mirror mantel in dining-room, big kitchen and well-finished large pantry, nice screen back porch; fine corner lot, with grass, trees and flowers that bloom in the spring, on the electric car line in Pico Heights; price $1375-$100 cash, balance $25 per month. This house cost over $1300 and the lot is worth $500 without improvements, and to see the place is to want it. Now this is not a fairy when the proof of the nuddin' is to take a $500 without improvements, and to see the place is to want it. Now this is not a fairy tale, and the proof of the puddin' is to take a look. Another five-room place near for $1400, no cash down and $25 per month. Still another near the other, $450, $15 per month. Think of all that good money you've wasted in rent. Langworthy Co., No. 226 South Spring street.

EVERY day the store improves; some days more than others; there is an improvement; improvement in stocks; improvement in trade; judge us by today; look for an improvement tomorrow and next week. We are culling out and reducing the prices on all goods that are not free movers. Placing on our counters new merchandise from the best houses in America. Trying to do better for you and ourselves.

French Sateens.

A lot of fine French Sateens that have been selling for 40c, 45c and 50c a yard go to 25c to close. Nice neat dark figures with moire and plain finish; the cream of the wash goods stock. Nothing the matter with them only the price. People are looking for cheap goods; the 25c price should sell every yard before the store closes this evening.

Silk Bargains.

$2, $1.75, $1.50 and $1.25 a yard has been the price; they should have been the best sellers in the house; people don't think as we do; the price goes to $1, and some as low as 75c; a few for 50c a yard. This will make the silks go out like brown muslins.

Muslin Underwear.

A few prices will do for all. Ladies' nightgowns, the odds and ends of a dozen or more lots that have been selling for $2, the price goes to one-half, $1 for your choice; a few drawers, we always considered them good value for $1 and 75c; the price goes to 50c to close.

Children's Hosiery.

A fortunate purchase of over 200 dozen Children's ribbed fast black hose; we have sold hundreds and hundreds of dozens of the same make for 25c a pair. This lot will be sold for 12½c a pair, sizes from 6 to 9½; it's the greatest hose bargain we know of.

We are beginning to think there is no place like this for bargains. You will agree with us-the store is gaining every day.

The coment-testing apparatus in use by the city was described some time ago in The Times. Briefly stated it provides for the subjecting of a square inch of cement hardened under certain conditions to a breaking tensile strain and the measurement of that strain; also the subjecting of an inch cube of coment hardened under certain conditions to a crushing strain of one ton or less and the measurement of that strain.

certain conditions to a crushing strain of one ton or less and the measurement of that strain.

The cement-testing department was established at the time of construction of the outfall sewer and a sample of cement from every barrel used on that work, it is reported, was tested.

On the part of the committee recommending that the services of the man testing cement be dispensed with, it is argued that now that the outfall sewer has been completed there is no need of having the tests made and that it would be economy not to have them made.

It is stated, however, that the sewer work alone going on in the city causes the consumption of nearly as much cement per day as did the work on the outfall sewer—to say nothing of the great quantities of sidewalks and cement curbs that are being laid.

The fact that the unixing of the cement may be watched by an inspector who is both honest and competent, it is asserted, is not a proper safeguard, and if there be no tenus made as to the quality of the cement used there is likely to be considerable quantifies of worthless, or nearly worthless, cement put into the sidewalks, sewers, curbs and other public works.

Jambolana (more correctly, Sizygium Jambolanum,) from India, which promises to become one of our best trees, not so much for its fruit, which is small, but for its graceful habit and valuable timber.

The sapodilla (Achras sapota.) grows well, but there are only small plants of it. The same must be said of the Natal plum (Carissa arduina;) of the cluster fig from India (Fleus glomerata;) of the confece (coffee Arabica;) of the jack fruit (Artocarpus integrifolia,) and of many more introduced quite lately.

Most remarkable among these is the candlenut tree (alcurites moluccana.) of which K. Stevens has a good-sized tree, which has not bloomed yet.

Bananas must have been introduced here long ago, and very likely from Maxico. They are most common in every garden, and ripen, occasionally, some very good fruit, but it must be said that up till now they have been grown rather as an ornamental than a useful plant—with the exception, perhaps, of E. The more common variety is the so-called Oronoco, but experimenting is going on as to growing other varieties of superior merit, and not less hardy than the above.

The meion pawpaw (Carica papaya) has been growen several years in Montectto, but never lived long, probably on account of its fleshy roots being too liable to decay in rainy winters. Other species with which we are experimenting promise to do better, notably Carica quercifolia, from Argentina and Paragray, and Carica gracilis, from Colombia, all of them being particularly remarkable for the digestive power of their leaves, from which papaine—substance analogous to pepsin—is extracted.

A Word for John Bull.

LOS ANOBLES, April 29.—(To the Editor of The Times:) Relying on the policy of The Times to "let all sides be heard," I submit the following:

One of the most interesting, because complicated, questions of international law that has recently come before the people of this country is the action the United States should, or could, take in the matter of the demand for indemnity made by England of the republic of Nicaragua. The action of our Chief Executive, and of the Secretary of State, has been watched with the most absorbing interest, and vary generally and severely criticised as being in direct violation of the spirit and letter of the Monroe-doctrine and the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, our only precedents in dealing with affairs of this nature where disputes occur between the monarchies of the Old World and the republics of the New. It is claimed that the recent decided stand taken by President Cleveland in this matter is in direct opposition to these precedents, and therefore un-American to a degree. It is well not too hastily to judge of the course to be taken by our country in this important and delicate matter, but to carefully weigh both sides of the question, examining the

he has been called to rule. For a num-ber of years he resided in Europe, and travel and study have made him a person of broad and enlightened views. Presiof broad and enlightened views. President Zalaya is a man of internitable will and one who cannot brook opposition without showing resentment, and must be galled to desperation at the uncalled-for invasion of his country by the British lion. Were the Nicaraguans in their characteristics anything like their President, the English tars would have landed characteristics anything like their President, the English tars would have landed in Corinto only after a fight.

To show the character of Zelaya I will relate an incident that happended during the revolution of the Granadinos against Sacass. The Granadinos, after capturing the cuartels of Granada and Masaya (military barracks,) became frightened at what they had done and desired to retreat to Granada, leaving the outlying posts to take care of themsolves. Zelays, who had come from Managua to join the revolutionists, said to the Granadinos: "Go and fortify Granada. Is it only your city that you care for? Have you no interests in the republic outside of Granada? With my Managua friends we will fortify the "barranca" and prove to you that, though few in numbers, we are mighty in determination.

Zelaya's move in fortifying the "barranca" was the turning point in the war. Sacasa threw thousands upon thousands of soldiers against the "barranca," but without avail; it proved to be his Waterloo.

President Zelaya is known throughout the length and breadth of Central America as the "hero of the barranca." He is a man without fear. His face is stern and melancholy. During my four years' acquaintance with him I never knew him to smile. Though not a trained soldier he possesses natural talents for war, as evidenced by his tact in fortifying the evidenced by his tact in fortifying the "barranca."

Nicaragua is a pigmy in comparison to England, though the latter would find herself seriously hampered by the former in a march into the interior. The greatest part of the population of the republic is between the ocean and Lago de Nicaragua, and an army would have to encounter this population in its march to the interior. Along the line of march are the cities of Chichigalpa, Chinandega, Leon and Momotombo.

Onichigalpa iras a population of 2500; Chinandega, 18,000; Leon, 40,000, and Momotombo, 700. There are also a number of small villages dotting the way from Corinto to Lago de Managua. The Leonesses make good soldiers, and, when property led, will go anywhere and endure any amount of hardship. The Leon women are brave to a fault, and can fight, in case of an emergency, equal to their brothers. I saw these women do some brave deeds in the Granada revolution. They acted as vivandieres and went from soldier to soldier, giving water to the combafants during an attack on the "barranca." batants during an attack on the "Dar-ranca." The Gramatinos were mowing down the Leoneses at every fire, yet these women went about their duty as if en-joying a fiestin—a Lios Angeles fiesta at that. Many an English solder would fall ere the capital, Managua, could be ere the capital. Managua, could be reached.

A march into the interior would be a verifable march, as there would be no means of transportation, as doubtless the Nicataguan government has sent all the trains and locomortives to Leon. The government railway line runs from Corinto to Momotombo, the latter being a point on Lago de Managua, and is fifty-eight miles long. There is no direct rail-communication between Managua and Corinto. At the terminus of the road, Momotombo, one is required to take a steamer, and this waterway joins the occidental and oriental divisions of the railway system. The distance covered by steamer travel from Momotombo to Managua is thirty-two miles. The eastern division of the railway system begins at Managua and ende at Granada, a city on Lago de Nicaragua. This division is thirty-two miles in extent. Masaya, a city of 16,000 inhabilitants, is on this line. The government railway line is minety miles-long, adding the eastern and western divisions together.

rested last Saturday by Constable Johnstogather.

The telegraphic dispatches published in the papers concerning this embrogation speak of bridges connecting the island of Corinto with the mainfand. This is a mighake, as there are no bridges between the mainfand and the leisand of Corinto. There is, hiswever, a single-track treated tested corossing an arm of the sea between the mainfand and island, known locally as "Paso Caballos." The dispatches refer to this pass as a swamp. Again is an error committed, as there is not the slightest indication of swamp, the way being as clear and defined as the harbor of Corinto. Paso Caballos is an eighth of a mile wide. Even if the Nicaraguans were to destroy the trestie, they would not gain any material advantage, as the English could very easily land marines from their steam launches, and rowboats on the mainland. At this treatie has long been considered unwafe, it might be well if the government fly fire it, as then it would be replaced by a new one, and thus the eventual loss of twoman life be averted. Engineers say that the greater part of the piles have been eaten away by the toredo navalis, myking it listle to collapse at any time. The English will not gain much by making San Juan del Sur a port of entry, now that Corinto has been closed by the Nicaraguans. San Juan del Sur has neverbeen much in favor by Nicaraguan merchants, for two reasons: First, because there is no rail communication between the port and the interior; all freight being carried in carretas. The freight is taken to San Jorge, a port on Lago de

RAID ON SALOONS.

SOME OFFICERS WHO BOUGHT BOOZE ON SUNDAY.

An Unlucky Thirteen Saloon-keeper Charged With Violating the Sunand day Closing Ordinance--A Dozen Arrested.

Two members of the police force, Officers Long and Rayburn, who found time hang-ing heavily on their hands Sunday morn-ing, beguiled the hours by going about in lng, beguiled the hours by going about in citizens' clothes among the various saloons to find out, if they could, which ones were violating the Sunday-closing ordinance. They found just a baker's dozen of barkeepers who did not "savvy" their little game. The "cops," therefore, were served with just thirteen drinks.

Now, thirteen drinks would muddle the brains of the average civilian so that he would forget his purpose, if he had any, but it did not affect the jag-proof "coppers" that way. They did not for a mo-pers" that way. They did not for a moment lose their presence of mind, but went straightway and made out complaints against the proprietors or barkeepers of the thirteen salooms where they got the "books".

The thirteenth, who has not yet been arrested, is understood to be "Charley" Schroder, proprietor of the Hollenbeck bar. Now, Mr. Schroder, was either not to be found, or else the "beaks" realized at the last moment that thirteen was an unlucky number, and that it was better to let the Hollenbeck go over to be counted in with the next round-up.

PETTY CRIMINALS.

How Judge Morrison Doled Out Justice Yesterday.

matter in all its varied aspects and phases, and to form an opinion calmly and as free as possible from that partisan prejudice that renders a clear and unbiased judgment on political matters in this country so difficult to form. The Monroe doctrine in substance declares that the United States could not view the interposition by European monarchies in the affairs of the republics on this continent, for the purpose of colonization, or the establishment of any monarchical governments in either of the Americas, in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States. The view is very generally held that the recent action of England in selzing the port of Corinto and taking possession of the custom-house in order to obtain the sum of $75,000 demanded as indemnity for the expulsion of Consul Hatch by the Nicarsguan government, is a plain disregard of the Monroe doctrine, and that it should be immediately and vigorously resented as such by the United States. But, in my opinion, a careful view of the situation falls to reveal in the action of England any attempt either at colonization, the acquisition of lerritory, or the establishment of a monarchical form of government. It is very generally claimed by the republican press that the selzure of the custom-house is a usurpation of government to a monarchical form of government to a monarchy; nor has England selzed, or even threatened to selze any portion of Nicarsguan territory for the purpose of annexation to Great Britain. Her only expressed intention and object in doing as she has done—and any interference on our nay on the control of on the control of the control of core of annexation to Great Britain. her only expressed intention and object in doing as she has done—and any inter-ference on our part can be based only or that action, and we can take no cogni-zance of what she might do, or what ulter lor motives she ference on our part can be based only on that action, and we can take no cognizance of what she might do, or what ulterior motives she may have in so doinghas been to collect, even though the course taken be unjust, the sum of money she avers is due her. This manner of collecting a debt resembles more the action of a brigand than of a civilized nation; but it cannot be officially noticed by this country until it develops into some action that can be clearly shown to be in violation of our established precedents covering these questions. Even if England should seize all the ports of Nicaragua and run them for her own benefit until the amount of the indemnity is obtained, it would only be acting temporarily as the agent of the Nicaraguan government for the collection of a debt, and as long as her action is confined within these limits and no attempt is made to change the existing form of government, or to annex any territory to Great Britain, the United States cannot justly interpose between the two powers. Her occupancy of these ports for the purpose of collecting her debts—just or unjust—would not be sufficient ground on which to base an interference by the United States under the provisions of the Monroe doctrine. So, at the present stage of the proceedings, at least, England's action toward Nicaragua, though uncalled for and unjust in the extreme, does not violate any international law or policy of the United States, and therefore we cannot interpose in behalf of Nicaragua. If, in the future, England should go further, as is generally believed she will do, and secures any footing on American soil, then, and not till then, can the United States act, and if such a crisis does arise, her action should be prompt, vigorous and decisive, and we should hold with all the invincible strength of this mation the unity and harmony of the New World republics against the encroachments of the monarchies of Europe.

GORED BY A BULL. Horrible Death of Jacob Haas at Prospect Park.

Prospect Park

Coroner Campbell yesterday afternoon held an inquest on the body of Jacob Hass, who was gored to death by a Jersey bull at his home, near Prospect Park, Sunday evening. The old man had gone to the baropard to milk the cows. Not returning to the house for an unusually long time, the family went out to investigate. They found him lying in a corner of the yard, dead from various bruises which showed plainly that he had been attacked by the buil, which had been allowed to run with the herd. The body was brought in to Kregelo & Bresse's, where the inquest was held. A verdict in accordance with the facts was rendered. Hass had a wife and four children.

The Tide of Travel Eastward—The Chino Loop Line— A Bid for the Conductors' Convention— General Notes.

Just now the trend of railway travel is to the East. Both at the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific offices they will answer, if asked, "Yes, this is the time of year if asked, "Yes, this is the time of year when the Eastern swallows homeward fly." There is a fact in connection with this that is worth noting. Those who are returning Eas are those who came here with that intention. They were sojourners who left their homes to escape the rigors of the Eastern winter, and who come to Southern California for a warmer climate. Southern California for a warmer climate. The tickets of those returning, the rail-way officials say, establish this fact. They are all round-trip tickets. There is no evidence of any persons who come here with the intention of remaining returning to the East. There are, of course, plenty of passengers going East outside of the "round-trippers," but they are those who are on business or pleasure bent, and who, in due time, will return to their number of "round-trippers" going last year. Railroad men account for this in the simple fact that fewer came here, con-sequently there are fewer to go back.

sequently there are fewer to go back.

The local passenger movement during the month has been unusually great, the best the railroad companies have ever had. This is directly due to the fiests in Los Angsies, and to the large celebrations in some of the outside cities, notably "Orange day" at Riverside and the Odd Fellows' anniversary at Santa Ana. The Santa Fe carried over 500 passengers from this city alone for "Orange day" at Riverside, not counting way passengers, and, without having the figures, it is likely the Southern Pacific Company handled as many more. The Odd Fellows' calebration at Santa Ana represented even a much larger number of travelers, on account of the lodges of the order, who attended in a body. Altogether, railroad business has been good, and the officials won't find any good reasons for kicking for at least a few weeks yet.

THE CHINO LOOP. A report from Chino states that the Southern Pacific Company has a number of field officers out in that neighborhood lookfield officers out in that neighborhood looking over the ground. The visit of these gentlemen there at this particular time is associated with the talked-of Pomona and Riverside road. If this short line were built it would make still amother "kite-shaped" track, starting at Pomona, through Ontario and Cucamonga to Colton, then south to Riverside, to Chino and back to Pomona. Asked about this, Assistant Superintendent Prior said: "Well, the company has been talking for some time about connecting Chino with Pomona on the one side and Riverside on the other, but nothing definite can be said about it yet, certainly not until the reports of the field men have been received and examined." There is a bit of good country through there that would be greatly benefited by rail connection.

THE FAST FLYER. "ELL." new fast local flyer of the Southern Pacific, christened the "Eli," put on about two weeks ago, is becoming a great favorite with those who have any business to transact at any other point on the line between this city and Riverside, and yet who do not want to give up the whole day going there and back. One can feave Loo Angeles at 7:45 a.m. on the "ER," go as far as Riverside, spend an hour and a half there, and be back in this city at 1:45 p.m. It gives an hour and three-quarters at Redlands, over two hours at Colton, and nearly four hours at Pomona. Another advantage of this train, as pointed out by the officials, is that it makes closs connection with the 2 p.m. San Francisco express.

It is stated that no more obstructing property-owners retard the work of the railroad's occupation of Broadway, even the most obdurate one among them having finally yielded to the proffered price. It will be but a short time now when the Southern Pacific trains will be running through between Los Angeles and Pasadena.

through between Los Angeles and Pasadena.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD.

Ten of the elegant new cars for the Pasadena and Los Angeles electric railway have arrived, and are being put in order at the shops of the consolidated company in this city. Some of these cars are lettered "Los Angeles and Santa Monica." which indicates the ultimate use to which a number of the cars are to be put. These cars, of which a fleeting glimpse was accorded the public a few days ago, are finer than anything of the kind ever seen hereabout. In exterior appearance they look much like a Pullmag palace car, or, to be more explicit. one of those private cars that railroad magnates have for their own use, with glass observation platforms. The interior seats of which there are eight on -ach, side the central aisle, each hold two passengers, and are upholstered in red plush. The woodwork finishing is of the best, and the metal and glass are superior. The platform at one end has seats for twelve people who will be, protected from wind by a ghas builkhead which reaches from dash to roof, and in stormy weather will be shielded Ly spring curtains coming down the side of the car and in front of the seated passengers. In all there are seats for forty-four passenger. A novelty in these cars is the air brake which is worked automatically, the air compressing pump being operated by the revolution of the wheels. The cars are quite heavy and will require much electric power for their propulsion.

It is understood that for some time after the inauguration of through service between Los Angeles and Pasadena by the electric line the new cars will not run into this city, but will be in close connection with the Buena Vista-street line in East Los Angeles, thus making necessary one change of ears. According to the best information at hand this arrangement will be but temporary, and the new cars will soon run direct from the corner of Soring and Fourth streets to the center of Pasadena.

The Colorado Midland has a botal mileage of 350 miles, the math time running from Golorado Springs to New Castle, a distance of 23 miles. There are a number of important branches. The road was chartered in 1883, and opened for traffic five years later. The entire capital stock is owend or controlled by the Santa Fe, and since May, 1893, the Santa Fe has operated the road directly. "There is nothing in this," said Receiver A. F. Walker, "beyond what appears on the curdice. The Santa Fe reorganization plan, which was recently promulgated, did not include the Colorado Midiand, afthough provision will be made for bringing that road within the fold at some future time. SERIOUS BURNING OF THREE PEOPLE AT WEID HOUSE

Dangerous Plan of Doctoring Bedbugs-John Herron Probably Fatally and Two Others Seriously Injured.

Bedbugs are almost unknown in Southern California, yet a little bedbug or what was supposed to be one, was the cause of a fire yesterday morning, which resulted in the probably fatal burning of one person and the scorching of two others, to say nothing of the damage done to property.

The disaster occurred at the Weld The disaster occurred at the Weld House, which fronts on Main, Eighth and Spring streets, about 10:30 a.m. yesterday. Miss Annie Turrell, who occupied a room in the house with her aged uncle, John Herron of Indianapolis, complained to the landlady, Mrs. Wagenblast, that she had caught a bedbug on the old gentleman's bed—a bug, perhaps, which they had brought with them from the East. Mrs. Wagenblast immediately proceeded to the rocm with a can of gasoline with which to wash the furniture and mattress, so as to eradicate the bugs if there were any.

wash the furniture and mattress, so as to eradicate the bugs if there were any. She says that before she entered she inquired whether there was any fire in the room, and, being assured that there was not, she commenced to apply the fluid where she thought it was most needed. Fresently there was an explosion and in an instant the room was filled with flames. Mr. Herron, who is 70 years old, very infirm and nearly blind, fell to the floor. Mrs. Wagenblast rolled the old man toward the window, and his niece, who had escaped to a little porch outside, tried to pull him through the window after her. The flames by this time compelled the landlady to retreat by way of the hall door, and Miss Turrell, being unable to pull her uncle through the window, he rolled back again into the fire.

In a very few minutes the fife department was at the scene and extinguished the flames. When Mr. Herron was rescued, it was found that he was very badly burned, from head to feet, and the doctors think it is doubtful if he will recover. He was first removed to a neighboring house, and later to the Sisters' Hospital.

Miss Turrell and Mrs. Wagenblast were burned about the hands and face, but their injuries are not serious.

The damage to the house and furniture will not exceed $200 or $300. The building is owned by the well-known capitalist. Ivar A. Weid.

Mr. Herron came here for his health from Indianapelis a few months ago. His niece accompanied him as a nurse, as the old gentleman was very feeble.

It is not known how the gasoline ignited unless it was from a smouldering fire in the grate.

to be Interesting.

While little is being said by the local sports of the twenty-diversund contest between "Prof." Billy Gallasher and Jack Fogarty which is booked for Tuesday even-Fogarty which is booked for Tuesday evening, May 7 next, it by no means follows that no interest is being taken in the event. On the contrary, the liveliest interest is shown by those who have been approached upon the subject, and their silence is simply due to the fact that they are a trifle shy of Fogarty. If his record be haif as good as he claims it is, he should make the matter one of considerably more importance to Gallagher than his friends seem to believe it will prove. Of course, he is at the disadvantage of having to get down to weight, always a risky undertaking, when, as in this case, the contest is likely to be a prolonged one. Whatever the outcome, however, those who know him assert that he will have given a good account of himself before the mill is over.

A Bank Failure.

AN INVESTIGATION DEMANDED.

A general banking business is done by the human system, because the blood deposits in its vaults whatever wealth we may gain from day to day. This wealth is laid up against "a rainy day" as a reserve find where it a condition of healthy prosperity if we have laid away sufficient capital to draw upon in the hour of our greatest need. There is danger in getting thin, because it's a sign of letting down in health. To gain in blood is nearly always to gain in wholewome flesh. The odds are in favor of the germs of consumption, grip, or pneumonia, if our liver be inactive and our blood impure, or if our flesh be reduced below a healthy standard. What is required is an increase in our germ-fighting strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood and makes it wholesome, stops the waste of tissue and at the same time builds up the strength. A medicine which will rid the blood of its poisons, cleanse and invigorate the great organs of the body, vitalize the system, thrill the whole being with new energy and make permanent work of it, is surely a remedy of great value. But when we make a positive statement that of per cent. of all cases of consumption cas, if laken in the early stages of the disease, be CURED with the "Discovery," it seems like a bold assertion. All Dr. Pierce asks is that you make a thorough investigation and satisfy yourself of the truth of his assertion. By sending to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., you can get a free book with the names, addresses and photographs of a large number of those cure-forthroat, bronchial and lung disease, as well as of skin and serofulous affections by the "Golden Medical Discovery." They also publish a book of 160 pages, being a medical treatise one consumption, bronchistis, asthma, catarth, which will be mailed on receipt of address and six cents in stamp.

TUCSON.

TUCSON. April 27.—(Special Correspondence.) Three sectilers from the Fort Thomas reservation, recently opened to entry as public land, discovered simultaneously that a fine little tract had been overlooked in the first scramble, and so they had a little Oklahoma rush of their own. The "rush" came off on the 26th, and, while it was small, it was sanguine. The train on which they arrived got in at 11:30 p.m., and forthwith they set out for the land office. Two of them got there together and stationed themselves at the front door. Fortunately the night police overlooked them, so there they staid over night, without anything like comfort by the time the chill night air settled down. Meanwhile No. 3 saw that he had been forestabled, so he climbed over a high corral in the rear of the office and got to the back door. There he too, camped for the night. In the morning when the janttor came around to sweep out he made his rush and got into the land office with the declaration that he was going, to hold the fort till the registracame. The janttor insisted, however, that he decamp, and this the boomer would not do. Accordingly, the Chief of Police was called in and the would-be settler bounced. He then took his place at the front door with the others, and the policeman departed. When 9 o'clock came, and with it the registrar, No. 3 again became obstreperous and tried to force himself in front place. Only with the return of the policemán and the exertions of the officer did he go to the rear and lose of hand.

It was with deep regret that many read the announcement of the death of John Milner, one of the best known and respected citizens of this city. Mr. Milner's death came exceedingly suddenly and unexpectedly. It was a great shock to the entire community. Mr. Milner was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1834, where he received a collegiate education. When entering his manhood he left Germany and came to the United States.

About the year 1858 he came to California via Panama, and ideptified himself with a mercantile house in San Francisco. When the war broke out he entered under the colors of Gen. Banning, and as peace was declared he was appointed agent at Los Angeles for the Los Angeles and Wilmington railroad, which position he filled until 1874, when he excered the Parmers' and Merchants' Bank under I. W. Hellman. To those who knew him it is unnecessary to say anything in praise of Mr. Milner. That he was a man of unimpeachable integrity, purity of motive, unselfish, kindly, gentle and noble, is known to nearly every man, woman and child not only in this county, but practically the entire State.

The influence of a man of Mr. Milner's character on the world cannot be overestimated in producing good men and noble women. He leaves a widow and eight children to mourn his loss. May he rest in peace!

IT'S ALL OVER.

Surcease of Agony on the Librarian Question.

The Library Board Has Ousted the Old and Installed the New.

Mrs. Fowler and Her Assistants to Take Charge at Once and Get Posted by Degrees Sometime Later.

A special meeting of the board of di-rectors of the Los Angeles Public Library was called yesterday afternoon, and that body, accordingly convened at 1:30 p.m. for the purpose of removing Miss Kelso's scalp with all due state and ceremony.

Enjcysble as the anticipated operation undoubtedly was, the august company, in-dicad of bearing in its demeanor the joy-ful and serene consciousness of a good deed well done, was marked by a certain furtiveness of aspect, most commonly seen in the blonde species of the canis famil-iar.s when suffering under the indignity of a too close attachment on the part of a useful culinary utensil, usually constructed of tin.

The meeting was called to order by the prosident, Maj. G. H. Bonebrake, and Mass Kelso called the roll, showing a full attendance. After a little preliminary skirmishing in the shape of approving and receiving the reports of various committees, the request of the librarians to appear before the honorable board was taken up. Mr. Flint remarked, with rather a forced giggle, that he had no personal objection, and it was moved that they appear.

jection, and it was moved that they appeur.

Mr. O'Melveny took the bull by the horns and remarked that, as the object of this conference would undoubtedly be the election of a new librarian, the rest of the business had better be disposed of before the matter was taken up. One lone report having been accordingly received and approved, the weighty routine business was declared to be over and Miss Kelso, in a clear voice, and with much quite dignity of manner, read the formal resignation of Tessa L. Kelso, librarian; Adelaide Hasse, assistant librarian, and Estelle Haines, principal of the reference depaitment.

Mr. O'Melveny spoke, with sincere feeling, his deep regret that the necessity for this acidon should have arisen, but this display of weakness was promptly aquashed by Mr. Frint, who proclaimed that for his part he saw no cause for regret, and he moved that all three resignations be accepted. They were accordingly taken up one by one and estlemnly accepted, only Mr. O'Melveny's sturdy negative interfering with the majectic ordering of the powers that be. Mr. Flint then moved that the election of a new librurian take place.

The board, after expressing in its looks: "Dear me, this is so sudden; whom shall we choose?" scrubbed up its brains and proceeded to fish out four candidates from we choose?" scrubbed up its brains and proceeded to fish out four candidates from the depths of its inner consciousness. Mr. Stewart stood sponsor for three of these, Mrs. Clara B. Fowler, Prof. Horace Brown and D. R. Colmery. Mr. Storrs suggested Mrs. Harriet C. Wadleigh. Mr. Flint trotted out a little candidate of his own, to wit, Mrs. M. H. Miller. but Mr. O'Melveny introduced the objection that she had been resident in this city for only five months, and her name was dropped as not being eligible for candidacy.

Mr. Stewart here made a slight break in the order of things by requesting that Mrs. Kernodle, librarian of Santa Ana, be permitted to study in the Los Angeles library, subject to the rules and regulations of the training school. It was so ordered. Mr. Flint then moved that the vote of the young ladies employed in the library be taken with regard to the election, and the motion was put and carried with laudable gravity, considering the roaring farce which these philanthropists, in the depths of their benevolence, had prepared for the entertainment of the onlookers.

Miss Russ was called in, and expressed ment defections of their benevoence, and prepared for the entertainment of the onlookers.

Miss Russ was called in, and expressed the desire of the entire corps of employees to have a voice in the matter. All who could be spared from the desks were then summoned, and while awaiting their arrival the board became exceedingly funny, and disported itself with much playfulness, Mr. Flint facetiously regretting that Superintendent Search was not present to give them the benefit of a little individual instruction. This was a most pertinent remark by Mr. Flint.

When the young ladies arrived they voted unanimously in favor of Miss Gleason as cardidate for the office of assistant librarian, she being the best person for the place in point of efficiency and length of service.

Maj. Bonebrake raised a point of civil service in the ouestion whether efficiency did not count for more than length of service, and the girls answered emphatically their than the service. ically that that was exactly what they, meant in nominating Miss Gleason. Mr. Stewart asked if, in the event of a possible difference of opinion between the board, and the employees, the latter would abide by the decision of the board and work as cheerfully and well as though their wishes in the matter had been consulted.

work as cheerfully and well as though their wishes in the matter had been consulted.

Miss Keiso here interposed upon the ground that the question was unfair, so Mr. Stewart delivered a little sermon upon the duty of submissiveness, and subsided. Mr. Fiint suggested, with all the vivacity of a man who has stumbled upon an idea so new that the creases are not out of it, that it was just possible that the young ladies might feel that some injustice had been done in the matter of the change. Wildly improbable as was this supposition, the young ladies showed the natural contrariness of their sex by a reply in the affirmative, vigorous and fervent enough to carry conviction to the most skeptical of souls.

Undismayed by this rebuff. Mr. Flint next rashly suggested that the employees be allowed a vote in the selection of the librarian as well as the assistant, to which Mr. O'Melveny promptly assented, providing Miss Kelso and Miss Hasse were considered as being among the candidates. Mr. Flint simply snorted, and favored Miss Kelso with a glare for herself, as she calmly responded: "Miss Kelso is past all consideration by this board."

The president here interposed, and moved that the young ladies be excused from further attendance, as the board did not wish to embarrass the girls by insisting upon their presence in the room.

Miss Russ coolly replied, in behalf of the rooting ladies, that they were not at all embarrassed; and, indeed, it did seem to the casual observer that the embarrassment was all on the other side. Mr. Flint here put a stopper on further frivolity by impatiently requesting that the girls' vote be taken. Mr. O'Melveny insisted upon the former incumbents being included among the candidates, and Miss Kelso, catching the spirit of the thing, with mock-gravity placed her fate in the hands of the girls.

Then the fun hegan.

The whole meeting had made a holy show of fisself during all the previous proceedings, but these were milk and honey compared to the verbal aparring which followed. The indefatigable Mr. Flint, who certainly bore a cord of wood on his shoulders in the place of the figurative chip, rose to the occasion. Miss Kelso entrenched herself behind her spectacles and calmly awaited the onslaught, and the fur fiew in wads until the director subsided, lestying the deposed librarian mistiress of the field.

Voting for the candidates was next in order, and Mrs. Fowler, formerly Miss

Voting for the candidates was next in order, and Mrs. Fowler, formerly Miss Clara B. Clark, teller in the First National Bank, was elected to the post of librarian by 4 votes. Miss Daisy Austin was elected assistant by 3 votes, Miss Gleason receiving 1 and Miss Wise 1. Miss Haines's place was declared to be open until the next regular meeting of the board.

max of its little free show by calmly requesting Miss Kelso to remain in the library long enough to initiate the new librarisan into her duties. For a moment, even Miss Kelso was staggered by this sublime dispay of cool nerve, but she speedily recovered herself, and replied: "Gentlemen, under the existing circumstances. I really must respectfully, but emphatically, decline the honor."

The board looked a trifle sheepish, but Mr. Flint acridly observed that the board required no courtesles from the ex-librarian, and could very well get along without them

Mr. O'Melveny then moved that a committe of one—any one but himself—should be appointed to notify the new librarian of her appointment, and of the fact that she was expected to take charge of the library today.

The question of finance then arose, and it was proposed that a committee should be appointed to look after bonds for meeting library expenses, and that it be done at this meeting, in order that publication in the newspapers might follow as soon as possible. Mr. Stewart observed that the library board had furnished the newspapers with so much entertainment during the last two months that it was hardly necessary to be in a hurry about giving the last two months that it was hardly necessary to be in a hurry about giving the last two months that it was hardly necessary to be in a hurry about giving the more material.

Mr. Flint was here excused, and stood not upon the order of his going, but shook the dust of the library from his pedal extremities and departed in haste.

There was a little more unimportant discussion, and then the board adjourned to group its lif around Miss Kelso and tell her how sorry it was that she was going, and how it deplored the necessity of this action.

THEY FALL IN EASY PLACES.

Miss Kelso is now in negotiation with a New York publishing house, and will probably go to that city in August. Miss Hasse will depart for Washington, D. SAN DIEGO, April 22.—(Special Correspondence.) The announcement of the departure of J. W. Sefton, president of the San Diego Flume Company, for Europe, and the annual meeting of that company, to be held in a week or so for the election of a board of directors, led many to think that Mr. Sefton proposes to gradually retire from the active management of the water company's affairs. His health is delicate. During his absence abroad his San Diego affairs will be managed by his nephew, Engineer Howells, the representative of the Municipal Investment Company, which controls the flume and the city distributing system.

PASADENA, April 29.—(Special Corrependence.) The City Council met in regular session this afteracon, Trustees Lukens, Hamilton and Washburn present, President Cox in the chair. The protest tegainst the improvement upon Fair Oaks evenue was the first matter brought up, as this was the day set for the hearing. Mr. Holland appeared to support the protest, and was listened to by the Council, which, after deliberation, overruled the same and denied the prayer of the petitionsys. Affidavits affecting the proposed work upon De Lacy and Congress streets were introduced and declared sufficient, as were the affidavits concerning the work upon Fair Oaks avenue, and the publication of bids for the same will follow in the regular course. The resolution of intention regarding the proposed widening of Villa street from Los Robles avenue to Molline, against which there has been some opposition by certain property-owners along the proposed illne of work was

THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

E. C. Webster, president of the Pasadena and Los langeles Electric railway, expressed a willingness today to place his hand upon the city directory and take a solemn cath that the electric cars would be running through to Los Angeles by Wednesday. They will not run on schedule time, however, until the machinery has been thoroughly tested, and how long that will take, no man can tell. The schedule time from the corner of Colorado street and Fair Oaks avenue to Fourth and Spring will be 40 minutes. The company today began its work on the Altadena extension, and Mr. Webter declares that cars will be running over that part of the route by July 4. The horse-car track will be taken up as fast as is needful to make room for the new track, and there will be a return loop and track back to Raymond, but over just what streets it will extend beyond the city timits and north of Chestnut has not yet been made public, to the great discontent of the residents in the northern part of the town, and especially to the real estate fraternity interested therein.

The many friends of H. M. Gabriel, president of the Union Savings Bank, will regret to hear that his increasing ill-health has at that necessitated his retirement from his official position. Mr. Gabriel tendered his resignation this afternoon, and it was reluctantly accepted by the directors. The vicempt caused by the resignation of Mr. Gabriel was filled by the appointment of Robert Eason, former vice-president, and A. R. Metcalfe was appointed to the vice-presidency in Mr. Eason's stead. The personnel of the directorate was changed by Mr. Gabriel's resignation, and Charles Smith, the genial cashier of the intertuction, was elected a member of that body. Mr. Gabriel carries with him into his retirement the good wishes of hosts of friends, and it is hoped that he will soon again be in the full enjoyment of health. Rev. Florence E. the Riverside and Artington Railway Company and the Elighth-street car line. The two roads being now under the management of the Riverside and Arlington Company, the cars will be run to the Santa Fe depot as soon as the gauge of the cars and track of the Elighth-street line are changed to conform with the new order of things. This movement will doubtless furnish better street-car service for Riverside, and especially will it be a good accommodation to those coming in on the trains and destring be immediately go down the valley. An increase of patronage to the lines is also expected.

The tent and other parapherman of the show starting out from San Diego recembly, and which was ubandoned at Riverside, were sold Saturday by a constable. The tent was bid in by two attorneys, presumably for their clients, for $27.50, and a second-hand store bought the benches. Another attorney here some time store bought a spotted horse from another strangded institution, and there is some time strangded institution, and there is some talk, in the event of legal business running low, of an embarkation in the circus business.

The insurance war still continues in this city. It is thought that four-fiths of the property here has been refinered at the reduced rates, all residence property for three years, and the business blocks and stocks for twelve months, and the agents are out trying to create a building boom. Public Administrator Bordwell has applied for letters of administration on the estate of Sophia Vauthander, who died near Perris last week from poison either administrated by herself or an unknown person. The property consists of a 150-acre farm with appurtenances.

There was a large turnout, as Stanley was well known with the fraternity, and highly respected.

Last Saturday was a big day with the Riverside Fruit Exchange. There were thirty-two cars of oranges shipped by the twelve associations working through the exchange system, the largest shipment by several cars ever made in one day by any company, association or association of associations. This does not include shipments by other parties outside of the exchange, which were eight cars. The packing-houses are all busy now, some of them having orders for a larger number of cars than they can supply at once. Some are running forces day and night, and boxmaking was an order at a number of them Sunday. Most of the associations are this week clearing up about all the navel or anges. The week ending Wednesday, May 1, promises to be the biggest shopping week, not only of the season, but of any other season since oranges-growing first began in Riverside. Orders for seedlings are increasing, and the associations by the rullroads on seedlings after May 1 will be big money to the growers here, and will cause that fruit to move much more rapidly.

Misdeeds Committed in a School House-Notarial Appointments. SANTA BARBARA, April 29.—(Special Correspondence.) The Fourth-ward school whose grounds some vandal lately nouse, whose grounds and destroying the young trees lately set out by our Board of Edu-cation, was the scene of another outrage Sunday night. The building was entered and in one of the rooms the chalk crayons and erasers were thrown upon the floor and a bottle of ink emptied on the teacher's desk, while several wall maps were siit with a knife and the post at the foot of the stairs in the hall was hacked with a knife. Some five gallons of coal tar were also smeared upon the front steps.

Marshal Hopkins and Mr. McDuffy put three boys who are under suspicion through a "sweating process," as another schoolboy termed it, on Monday morning, but without result. Every effort will be made to discover the perpetrators of this outrage, who are believed to be the same in both cases, and it is probable that the reward of $25 already offered by the board for the detection of the miscreants who destroyed the young trees will be increased.

SAN BERNARDINO, April 29.—(Spe SAN BERNARDINO, April 29.—(Special Correspondence.) A few years ago, at the close of the boom, the great Muscuplabe rancho, comprising several thousand acres, was divided up among the members of the syndicate that purchased it, 5000 acres going to M. M. Severance of Los Angeles, 1200 to Mr. Cheney of Boston, and 1000 to W. R. Wiggins of this city. These lands have been mostly tying unimproved since that time, although there is a supply of water obtainable from Devil's Canlands have been mostly lying unimproved since that time, although there is a supply of water obtainable from Devil's Canyon, near by. The Wiggins tract will soon be platted and put upon the market, settled and made to assist in the peoductive prosperity of the county. In addition to the water rights already secured, Mr. Wiggins has several hundred acres of clerega land dp in the canyon, from which water can be developed and piped to the land. The is also in a water belt, from which the supply can be obtained by pumping, and the electric light works are proposing to put in a day service and run wires all through the valley, where there is any one who wishes to use electricity as a motive power, either for pumping or any other purpose. This plant will be extended to this tract, and at a very slight cost, probably cheaper than piping water on from the canyon. The whole tract and thousands of acres adjoining can by this means be irrigated without going off the tract for the water. Just across and only a few feet distant from the south line of this tract is a three-inch well from which a small gasoline engine, at an expense of 25 cents: a day, pumps the water for twenty acres of orchard with vegetables between the rows of trees. The opening-up of this tract under these favorable circumstances will give an impetus to real estate that will advance it materially during the coming summer.

The result of the insurance rate war culminated in the fight over the county property Saturday afternoon, when the Board of Supervisors decided to receive scaled bids on the whole amount, $57,500, when Mr. Jolly, who secured the school-houses the day before at a reduction of 75 per cent discount on the county property. C. E. Moore put in a bid of 75 per cent. discount on the county property. C. E. Moore put in a bid of 75 per cent. discounts, and got the insurance. This saves the county about $900 on the three years for which the policy is to run. The war is now over, and Mr. Roos, who came here to investigate it, left Saturday night for Pomona, and is probably making things lively there today.

REDLANDS.

REDLIANDS, April 29.—(Special Correspondence.) The shipment of oranges in the Redlands district is about over for this season. It is estimated that only shout fifty cars remain unsold, and thes consist of Mediterranean Sweets, Michaels and Valencias. This season's tal shipment will approximate 450 cars. This exceeds the estimate made at the beginning of the season by about forty cars. The average prices received for first quality of fruit will be about $2.35 per box for navels and $1.40 per box for seed-quality of truit will be about $2.50 per box for navels and $1.40 per box for seed-lings, f. o. b.

The reduced freight rates from 90 to 60 cents per box on oranges over the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific lines to Eastern ports will not affect the shipments of oranges to the extent that would at first have been supposed. The latter rate does not permit of refrigerator cars, and, as the fruit would go from New Orleans and Galveston by water to New York, it would require about three weeks' time for the fruit to reach its destination.
